

SAVAGE FORMOSA BATTLE RAGES; JAP FLEET IS REPORTED IN ACTION

Patch Hurls New Drive From South

German Relief Breaks
In Briefly at Aachen
But Is Hurdled Back

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The western front flared with action from its northern end in the Low Countries to the southern sector in the Vosges mountains. While a savage and crucial battle raged yesterday south of the Schelde river estuary, where Canadian forces were striving to free the entry to the port of Antwerp, U. S. Army units fighting inside Aachen smashed the heaviest Nazi counterattack yet made in the direction of that German city and other Americans at the southern end of the line advanced swiftly on Bruyeres, 12 1/2 miles east of Epinal, France.

(Fighting "as tough as any since the battle of Caen" is raging around Aachen, the United Press quoted SHAEF as saying.)
GAP CLOSED?
(A BBC report heard by CBS said the Americans had closed the half-mile gap northeast of Aachen.)

The Nazi attempt to relieve the Aachen garrison was repulsed by massed artillery and antitank guns. Doughboys meanwhile worked their way slowly through the city, house by house and pillbox by pillbox. Strong Nazi infantry forces had for a time overrun U. S. positions.

The sudden American move in the south was made against only spotty Nazi resistance despite reports that the Bruyeres vicinity, from which the Germans earlier had launched violent counterattacks, was strongly defended. A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent George Tucker said the Americans were within a mile of the city.

PATTON ON MARCH
Also on the move was Gen. Patton's Third Army which drove a mile east beyond the Parroy forest in the Metz-Nancy sector of the line, and the Lillie (France) radio said the Americans in that region seemed to be preparing for "an important offensive."

Canadians chopped off half the German pocket south of the Schelde estuary yesterday in a high-priority battle to free Antwerp as a great supply funnel for Allied troops besieging Hitler's Reich.

Twin Canadian drives came in half the stubborn German pocket below the Schelde estuary blocking Allied use of Antwerp, one of the world's greatest ports, 30 miles to the east.

Infantrymen bursting south from their Schelde beachhead linked with units at the head of the Savezja inlet. Three miles to the west, Canadians struck over the Leopold canal, seized Waterlooville, and hit within two miles of the main beachhead forces to the north.

PULL BACK TO CANAL
The double successes forced the Germans to pull back to a small canal running through the middle of the Schelde pocket about six miles from the coast, a front dispatch said.

But north of Antwerp the Germans in a powerful counterattack drove Canadian army men back from the roads and railway causeway leading to the estuary "switching" the head of the Allied line. Allied artillery still dominated the causeway to Beveland and to flooded Walcheren, where German garrisons also are barring the water approach to Antwerp.

To the east in Holland, British forces battered another 1,000 yards southeast of Overloon against fierce resistance, striking within 2,500 yards of the Nazi stronghold at Venray toward the German frontier. A front dispatch reported signs of a German pull-back all along the narrow front before Venray.

Aachen remained the focal point of the heaviest western front battles. But even as the Germans threw in new strength there, Allied planes tumbled 4,000,000 war news leaflets on six cities along an 80-mile long sector near the Rhine, telling the civilians of the progress of the war closing in upon them.

U. S. Carrier Force Destroys 91 Planes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
American and Japanese communiques yesterday indicated an air naval action, perhaps the most furious of the Pacific war, was under way in the Formosa-Philippines theater.

Fighting off strong Japanese air attacks, Pacific fleet task forces smashed at Formosa and Luzon again Friday and destroyed at least 91 enemy airplanes.

At last reports the fighting still was under way, and there were strong indications that the battle along the approaches to the Orient was building up to a tremendous peak.

The Japanese have announced that their fleet is in action. Although there was no indication here that this was so, an engagement with the Japanese fleet long has been sought by Adm. William F. Halsey and his fighting men.

U. S. LOSSES LIGHT
Whatever the extent, the going apparently was not unfavorable for the American forces, despite the fact that the Japanese were making their strongest defense since their smashing defeat in the battle of the Philippine Sea June 18 and 19.

Adm. Nimitz, commander in chief of Pacific ocean areas, announced the continuing raid in 10 a. m. (Hawaii Time) communique yesterday.

He said "our plane losses so far have been light."

There was no comment on Japanese claims to have sunk or damaged more than 50 American ships.

Carrier planes first hit Formosa Wednesday. The task forces fought off small groups of enemy aircraft that night, and again bombed and strafed island installations and shipping Thursday.

STRONG COUNTERATTACK
Planes of the Japanese imperial air force counterattacked the task forces off Formosa strongly throughout Thursday night, Nimitz said.

His use of the phrase "imperial air force" indicated that army as well as navy planes might have participated in the counterattack, but gave no indication whether the Japanese actually sent carrier-based planes into the battle.

During the Thursday night attacks, American carrier planes shot down 13 Japanese planes and antiaircraft on the task force vessels destroyed seven more.

CERAM BLASTED
Gen. MacArthur, too, continued his unrelenting air war on Japan in the southwest Pacific.

More than 150 planes dropped 80 tons of bombs on the islands of Ceram and Boeroe, west of New Guinea, his headquarters announced early today.

Dropping explosives on air-dromes at Haroekoe, Amhai and Kairatoe, the planes also caused damage to runways. At Amhai the bombs set fires. The raid on Boeroe centered on oil storage facilities which were reported out of business, and others are said to be planning to drop out.

The reorganized city-county lottery squad under Police Lt. E. I. Hildebrand is finding it increasingly difficult to find "writers" and "pick-up men." Lottery operators have ceased most of their activity until they can determine how long "the heat will be on."

"We can lick the bug business with the co-operation of the courts and the public," policemen say, "but we must continue to get co-operation from the courts and the public in order to prevent operators from slipping back into town and organizing new companies."

The Constitution reported the lottery drive with the report of an impending clash between two companies. Lottery squad officers said they had no knowledge of the threats, and a Constitution reporter was subpoenaed to appear before council's police committee.

A few days later, a man allegedly head of a lottery concern was arrested on a minor charge and was found to have in his possession a 38-caliber pistol and a pistol permit issued by the Fulton county ordinary.

Police took up the permit and requested that it be cancelled by the county. The county refused, however, despite the fact that the man has been arrested five times this year—once for receiving stolen goods, once for gambling, once for disturbance and twice for traffic violations.

Speaks at Americus
AMERICUS, Ga., Oct. 15.—Judge Frank Hooper Jr., of Atlanta addressed the laymen at the regular morning service today at the First Baptist church.

Atlanta's first professional safecracking job in some time was reported over the weekend, with thugs taking $1,251 in cash and gasoline coupons good for 10,000 gallons from the Hardaway Coal company office at 746 Lee street, S. W.

City Detectives J. J. Chester and W. D. Johnson said the robbers entered the building through a side window, knocked the combination off the safe and tripped the lock. The heavy safe was opened without being broken or scared, indicating professional yeggmen.

R. H. Hardaway, company manager, told officers that this was the first time in many months that a considerable amount of money had been stored in the safe overnight. Officers point out that this is another indication that professional safecrackers are at work. The robbery verified a prediction by an expert.

Nazis Seize Budapest As Hungarians Yield

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Hungarian government of Adm. Nicholas Horthy sued for peace tonight, but as Russian armies drove across the country's central plains toward Budapest the Germans and pro-German elements apparently seized the capital.

Then the Hungarian Nazis—presumably aided by German SS divisions—rushed to Budapest, from Vienna—took over the radio. They called for the "elimination of the cowards and traitors" and urged the Hungarian army and home front to fight on beside Germany.

Horthy, according to a report broadcast by the radio at Lille, France, was seized by the Gestapo and taken to Germany.

Late tonight a broadcast from Budapest announced that the Hungarian Nazi party had taken control of the country and "taken matters in hand to eliminate traitors at all cost." The most ruthless measures will be taken against those disobeying orders—including the death penalty.

PROMISES TO AID NAZIS
Later Budapest broadcast an order from Francis Szalasi, chief of the pro-Nazi Arrow Cross party, criticizing Horthy and promising to continue fighting alongside Germany.

Horthy's petition did not order Hungarian soldiers immediately to lay down their arms. It was followed by a broadcast of a statement by the chief of the general staff, Col. Gen. Vitez Voerces, urging the troops to continue fighting "until the outcome of armistice negotiations is known."

Confirmation of the armistice request was expected hourly from Moscow, where Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin are

'Desert Fox' Rommel Dies, Victim of Allied Strafing

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The death of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, who as commander of the German Afrika Korps drove the British to the gates of Alexandria before the tide of battle turned at El Alamein in October, 1942, was announced tonight by DNB, the official German news agency. The Berlin broadcast said Rommel had "died of his wounds" but did not say how he was wounded or when he died. DNB said Hitler had ordered a state funeral for the crafty German field commander.

Allied field dispatches first reported rumors that he was dead on July 29, and the next day dispatches quoted Nazi prisoners and French civilians as saying he died of wounds suffered when his car was strafed.

German news and propaganda agencies denied reports of his death at the time but admitted he had suffered a brain concussion and other injuries in an automobile accident caused by Allied strafing planes on the Normandy battlefield July 17.

Rommel became known as the "Desert Fox" during the African campaigns and his Afrika Korps in the summer of 1942 threatened to cut its way to the Suez canal.

MONTGOMERY STALL
The British under then Gen. Montgomery stalled the German offensive on the approaches to Alexandria, and later mounted a counteroffensive which ended in the destruction of Rommel's forces in Tunisia.

Rommel was ground commander in Normandy at the time of the Allied invasion, and it was he who plotted the futile German plans to block the Allies at the Atlantic wall.

The DNB broadcast described Rommel as one of Germany's "most successful army leaders whose name will be linked forever with the heroic battle of our Afrika Korps" and said he was a "man deeply convinced of national socialism."

Allied Supreme Commander Gen. Eisenhower considered Rommel a "great general" but "not a superman."

VICTORY FOR ROMMEL
Rommel and Field Marshal Gen. Karl von Rundstedt, overall German commander in the west, were reported to have quarrelled over tactics in combatting the Allied invasion and on July 8 the Berlin radio announced that Von Rundstedt had been removed as commander in chief in the zone, and replaced by Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge, who had led the German drive to the gates of Moscow.

This action was considered a victory for Rommel.

The "Desert Fox," born at Heidenheim in Wurttemberg in November, 1891, became at 50 the youngest holder of the rank of field marshal in the German Army. His promotion from colonel general—he also was the young man to attain that rank—was announced in the summer of 1942 during his successful campaign in Africa.

During the first World War Rommel was assigned to an Alpine battalion and won distinction during campaigns in the Vosges mountains.

He joined the Hitler movement early and became well acquainted with Hitler and was considered a great favorite of the Fuehrer.

During the invasion of Poland in 1939, Rommel took part in the kill. He commanded a tank corps that swept through Belgium and France in 1940. In 1941 when the Italians got into trouble in Africa Rommel was sent to save them.

FORMOSA, LUZON AGAIN!

Reds Seize Arctic Port Of Petsamo

Heavy Tank Battle
Rages in Hungary;
Belgrade Is Pierced

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 16.—(AP) Russian troops captured the Arctic port of Petsamo yesterday, fought their way deeper inside the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade, and on the plains of Hungary battled against hundreds of German tanks buried across the invasion route to Austria, 150 miles beyond.

Berlin said Soviet troops and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans had fought their way into the center of Belgrade after reaching its outskirts Saturday. A Moscow broadcast said the puppet government under Field Marshal Nedich had fled with the German regime.

Berlin implied that Soviet troops had crossed into East Prussia on a 27-mile front in Memel territory, but Moscow did not announce any operations in that sector aside from heavy air raids Saturday night on Memel, the East Prussian rail center of Tilsit, and the Latvian port of Liepaja.

West of Riga the Russians advanced three miles beyond the city as they herded the Germans into a narrowing trap which was sprung last week when Gen. Ivan Bagration's First Baltic army reached the western Lithuanian coast north of Memel.

The battle on the Hungarian plains was one of the heaviest of the war, Moscow said. The Germans said the Russians were sending in reserves, and the Soviets said 143 German tanks had been knocked out and 61 planes shot down.

German troops retreating in Transylvania, east of the present fight on the plains of prewar Hungary in the north, were threatened with entrapment in a 12,000-square-mile salient.

A Cairo report said Czechoslovak troops fighting alongside the Red army had advanced 10 miles into their homeland.

Safecrackers Back In Atlanta, Seize $1,251

Atlanta's first professional safecracking job in some time was reported over the weekend, with thugs taking $1,251 in cash and gasoline coupons good for 10,000 gallons from the Hardaway Coal company office at 746 Lee street, S. W.

Officers point out that this is another indication that professional safecrackers are at work. The robbery verified a prediction by an expert.

No big-time safe robberies have been reported here in recent years, since nine men, including McNabb and Farlow, were given long-term sentences 10 years ago. Chester and Johnson point out that several safes have been beaten and hacked open by amateurs, but this is the first to be opened by an expert.

U. S. Bombers Batter Cologne and Rip Dam

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(UP)—American heavy bombers, striking only 40 miles beyond the embattled Siegfried line, today pounded Cologne and synthetic oil plants around Dusseldorf in a continuation of a ruthless round-the-clock air offensive which has put more than 6,700 Allied warplanes over German cities in less than two days and has virtually wiped out the great inland port city of Duisburg.

Cloud cover German fighters, and clusters of anti-aircraft fire could not turn aside the massive Allied air fleets. Great fires raged in the Cologne area, 40 miles beyond Aachen; RAF pilots said the roaring furnace which once was Duisburg cast its glow into the night skies for 200 miles.

The U. S. Eighth Air Force, using more than 1,200 heavy bombers for the second consecutive day, gave the Cologne area its second battering in 24 hours. The RAF struck anew at the German waterways network radiating from Dortmund and feeding Duisburg, and Lancasters blasted the Sorpe dam 20 miles southeast of Dortmund with their 12,000-pound "earthquake bombs." The Sorpe dam controls much of the Ruhr basin waterfalls.

A few hours earlier, more than 1,500 RAF bombers had ravaged Duisburg with 5,600 short tons of bombs; made a heavy attack on Brunswick, center of German aircraft and engineering industries, and bombed objectives in Berlin, Hamburg and Mannheim.

Announced losses for the opera-

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—"Run, Run," faithful old Fort-tress, flew her 85th mission today. Sgt. Walter Huling, Folston, Ga., radioman, said "we put the old Fort through her record mission without any trouble. She has never turned back once and is still as good as ever."

tions thus far have been 72 Allied planes, including 23 U. S. bombers and four fighters missing from the Cologne-Dusseldorf operations today. Fighters escorting the American bombers today did not engage in air combat, although fighters on other missions in Germany shot down seven German fighters and destroyed two more on the ground.

An estimated 5,000 tons of bombs has fallen on Cologne, rail center feeding the German armies opposite the American Third and First Army fronts, in two days. Early reports said that American fighters sweeping the railroads and highways in the Cologne-Brunswick and Kassel areas destroyed or damaged 54 locomotives and 125 freight cars, including three cars loaded with troops.

These attacks were reminiscent of the blitz against French transports which preceded the Allied invasion of western Europe.

Fires also were reported at the Monheim and Reisholz synthetic oil plants south and southeast of Dusseldorf.

The RAF obliteration of Duisburg, however, overshadowed even the tremendous American 8th Air Force operations of the past two days.

Air ministry officials said that more than 10,000 tons of bombs, including 500,000 incendiaries, had fallen on Duisburg in an 18-hour period. It was the heaviest drubbing ever given a city and outweighed the total tonnage that the Luftwaffe had been able to drop on London in the entire 1940-41 blitz.

Mosquito intruders of the air defense of Great Britain were out in force over Germany during the night and destroyed two enemy aircraft. Fighters supporting the RAF bomber fleets destroyed at least two more in attacks on airfields well behind the enemy lines.

American 8th Air Force fighter bombers flew over the Aachen area today, hitting targets in and around the city, it was disclosed at Allied supreme headquarters in France.

$100,000 Fire Destroys Hops At Brewery

An unspectacular, but stubborn, two-alarm fire in the hops storage room of the Atlantic Brewery at 247 Courtland street, N. E., last night caused damage estimated at $100,000. Firemen fought the smoke-making, smoldering blaze several hours.

Ray C. Holahan, of 511 West Howard street, Decatur, brewmaster, said the blaze probably was caused by a small sulphur fire which was being burned to fumigate the room.

"Apparently the burning sulphur ran out of its pan, spilled on some wood, and then spread to the bales of hops," said Holahan, who was hastily summoned from his home.

The fire was in a concrete structure, isolated from other brewery buildings. This building, specially constructed for the storage of hops, contained 450 200-pound bags of hops. A. J. Reis, of 2040 Peachtree road, N. E., supervising brewmaster, estimated the damage.

In fighting the flames, firemen were hampered by dense smoke, which forced them to wear gas masks. They were able, however, to confine the fire to the hop-storage room.

Executives at St. Joseph's Infirmary, across the street from the building, said that neither the hospital nor any of its patients suffered as a result of fire or smoke. Ross Hull, of 789 Cooper street, S. W., who works in the bottle room, which is not far from the hop storage room, "discovered the fire. The first alarm went in at 8:15 p. m. At 8:40 p. m. firemen turned in a second alarm. In all, there were eight pieces of equipment, with Fire Chief C. C. Styron in command, engaged in fighting the fire.

The storage room was jammed to the ceiling with bags of hops. Because of the fireproof room, no flames were visible from the street. But the dense smoke which poured out and gave off a peculiar odor, alarmed many persons for blocks around. Many of them feared the hospital was on fire.

The hop storage room, built entirely of concrete and steel, was 50 feet long, 20 feet wide and 20 feet high. The hops were piled 14 bags deep.

Reis, anticipating an early replacement of the hops, said that the fire would not halt brewing of the company's products.

Army Needs 10,000 Nurses

An appeal for inactive registered nurses to get back into uniform and help fill an immediate need by the Army for 10,000 additional nurses has been sounded here by Miss Mabel Mortvedt, of Washington, nursing consultant of procurement and assignment service of the War Manpower Commission.

Miss Mortvedt spoke to members of state and local procurement and assignment committees to wind up a tour of the state to arouse inactive nurses to duty.

"The Army's need for nurses is worse now than ever before since all fronts are active, and an enlarged staff is necessary in general hospitals here to care for returned wounded," she asserted.

Originally the Army asked for a nursing staff of 40,000 registered nurses, but that goal has been increased with recent war developments to 50,000.

Student nurses in the U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps are being graduated fast enough to fill the needs and the only reserve that can meet the latest call is inactive nurses. They should offer their services to civilian hospitals and thus release civilian nurses for military duty, Miss Mortvedt said.

Nurses in public health service and nursing education are not asked to volunteer for military duty for we are trying to keep them where they are, she added.

'BRIGHT AND PRETTY AS EVER'

Press Agent Denies Sinatra Hit By Egg

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(UP)—Frank Sinatra, his press agent, the Paramount theater management and last night's audience were agreed today that something hit "The Voice" in the midst of his swooning. But what hit him and how many was in dispute.

Reports that the bobby sox idol was splashed with a barrage of three eggs, well-aimed by an 18-year-old disgruntled youth, were vehemently denied by George Evans, Sinatra's press agent.

As incontrovertible proof, Evans pointed out that "The Voice" was appearing today in the same light gray suit he wore when he allegedly was egged at last night's show. The suit, Evans added, did not need a dry cleaner's services between shows.

"We think it was a wet napkin that hit him," the press agent said. "He wasn't splashed and only one object struck him and struck him lightly. As for his eyes being swollen—anyone can see his eyes as bright and pretty as ever."

Sinatra was described as "not amused" by the incident. But he didn't press charges against Edward Dorogukupetz, because he concluded that the youth was adequately punished with the pummeling indignation of teen-agers administered after he hurried whatever it was he hurled.

The swooning fans who grabbed Edward and yanked and struck him were unanimous in the opinion that what he threw was eggs. Edward was quoted as saying he threw an egg. Sinatra said he thought the first hit was scored with a grape. "Obviously," said Evans, "it couldn't have been an egg."

Willkie Was First Choice Of Over 5 Million Voters

(Elmo Roper, well-known authority on public opinion surveys, conducts the "Fortune" magazine polls.)

By ELMO ROPER.

Within a month between 40 and 50 million Americans will go to the polls to choose a man who will be their leader during the next four years. Their choice lies between Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie. A majority of these millions of Americans will be content with, if not enthusiastic about, one of the two choices offered. But for a large minority of these voters the choice they are offered is at best a second choice. Their first choice was Wendell Willkie.

Surveys of public opinion have not yet arrived at that state of precision which would permit us to say exactly how many people are in that minority group. The size of what might be described as the "Willkie group" depends on what degree of loyalty to him we want to consider as a requisite for membership. If we want to define a member of this group as a probable voter who strongly preferred Willkie above all other men for president, then the membership is between five and six million voters. Even after Willkie withdrew from the race there were between a million and a half and two million people who, while firmly intending to vote against Roosevelt, still wanted to register themselves as believing that Willkie was the best man the Republicans offered. The size of the remaining Willkie group is certainly more than two million; it may be as large as five million. The make-up of this group is historically interesting—and politically important. It is by no means the "last ditch" residue of those twenty-two million people who voted for Wendell Willkie in 1940, although it contains many who supported him then.

WILLKIE HELD FOLLOWING

Not all of Wendell Willkie's 1940 supporters still liked him. To many of them he had become only slightly less bad than "that man in the White House." To many of them he, too, had become a kind of a menace which would seek to continue social reform and endeavor to place America in some sort of a world concert of nations. But, from the ranks of his 1940 supporters, Mr. Willkie held a large and loyal nuclear following—a following which was swelled by many others who had voted for Roosevelt in 1940 and who had subsequently come to admire the Willkie vision and trust the Willkie integrity.

It was said with much truth of those who voted for Wendell Willkie in 1940 that many did so because they didn't believe he meant what he said and that many who voted against him did so because they didn't believe he meant what he said. Within two years after his defeat it was apparent he had meant what he said—and this lost and won his friends.

The group of Willkie followers which is today confronted with making a "second" choice is strongly internationalist. They see nothing ahead but wars and economic unrest unless America takes an active part around the council tables of what they are convinced is now one world. For Mr. Roosevelt's efforts in this direction they have great respect and admiration, but they concede him no superiority of vision or intent or ability over Mr. Willkie, and some of them wonder what secret agreements are being secretly arrived at. It would be hard indeed to tell the 1944 version of Willkie supporter that Roosevelt had done more for world order than had been done by Willkie in challenging the isolationist segment of his own party and in forcing from it what amounts to a repudiation of isolationism.

SUPPORT SOCIAL PROGRESS

This group of Willkie followers believes in social progress. They deplore none of the social gains of the New Deal, much as they may deplore what they regard as bad administration and the mixing of social reforms with political expediency. They concede to Mr. Roosevelt no superiority of social vision and no truer regard for the plight of the underprivileged. They concede to Mr. Dewey no greater ability to administer the reforms with which he, too, says he is in agreement. These Willkie supporters, who have been and maybe still are shopping for a candidate, credit their departed hero with being in favor of social progress for the best of all possible reasons: first, because it is good; second, because it is inevitable.

They saw in Wendell Willkie a man who believed in labor unions, not because such a belief was a political asset but because, with all their faults, unions did more good to more people than they did harm. They saw in Willkie a man who was against anti-Semitism, not because it sounded broad-minded, or because it picked up a few votes, or because he had some personal friends who were Jews, but because he knew that the existence of anti-Semitism was a blow at the very cornerstone of democracy. They saw in Mr. Willkie a man who was truly a friend of the Negro—not just every

Carrier-Hurled Robot Kills 7

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(P)—A flying bomb killed seven people and injured others last night in a community in southern England.

Many were trapped in their homes when the explosion wrecked a number of houses but were freed after several hours by rescue squads.

Night fighters and anti-aircraft batteries teamed up to knock several of the missiles out of the air as the bombs were launched against southern and eastern England from plane carriers. There were warnings in the London area for the fourth night in a row.

Highest Medal Given Hero Of Munda Fight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(P)—A giant infantry officer who held a key hill position alone, shattering Japanese charges with carbine fire and hand grenades, although twice wounded, has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. The War Department said today that the "intrepid action" of Capt. Robert Sheldon Scott, of Santa Fe, N. M., inspired his men to efforts which resulted in the capture of Munda air strip, major objective in the battle for New Georgia island.

The 31-year-old officer stands six feet four inches tall—and he found it not too easy to take cover behind a single blasted tree stump on the dome of a hill while turning back the enemy counterattacks in the engagement of July 28, 1943. Scott had deployed his riflemen and advanced alone to the top of the hill, from which most of the cover had been swept by artillery and mortar fire.

"Disregarding small arms fire and exploding grenades aimed at him, suffering a bullet wound in the left hand and a painful shrapnel wound in the head after his carbine had been shot from his hands, he threw grenades after grenades with devastating accuracy until the beaten enemy withdrew," the citations said.

At one point, Scott ran out of grenades and called for more. His men passed them forward to a private who tossed them up the hill to Scott.

The medal will be presented to Scott overseas, the department announced.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(P)—Funeral services for Wendell L. Willkie at Rushville, Ind., will be conducted Tuesday, his family announced today following the arrival in New York of his only son, Lt. Philip Willkie.

The young naval officer was on sea duty when his father, 1940 Republican presidential candidate, died a week ago. Plans for services at Rushville had been held in abeyance pending his return, and Mrs. Willkie had remained at her Fifth avenue apartment.

Mother and son will leave for Rushville by train late tomorrow (6 p. m. E.W.T.). Willkie's body was shipped to Rushville last Tuesday after an impressive service at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church here.

Allies Clearing Aegean, Using Athens Airport

British Seaborne Units, Food, Medical Supplies Entering Greece

ROME, Oct. 15.—(P)—German troops were reported fleeing northward from Greece today as Allied minesweepers began freeing the Aegean for naval operations and RAF warplanes and U. S. transports began using at least one airport in Athens, liberated capital of the Hellenic nation.

The few Nazis remaining in Greece were heading for Yugoslavia as fast as limited transport facilities and Allied aerial attack permitted.

Close on their heels came the forces of liberation—British seaborne units, Greek Patriots who buried their factional differences and joined in the immediate job of ousting the hated Germans, and finally the first shipments of food and medical supplies promised by the Allies to alleviate the suffering of three years under the Nazi whip.

ALLIES HIT LARISSA
The only indication of the whereabouts of the fleeing Nazis was an air force announcement that British Mustangs had shot up enemy transport, troops and locomotives in the vicinity of Larissa, 135 airline miles northwest of Athens.

British units did not appear to intend trying to catch the Germans and forcing them to fight. The main concern of the Nazis was to run the gauntlet of Marshal Tito's Partisans and the Red Army in Yugoslavia to the north. It is 500 airline miles from Greece's northern border to the German frontier and nearly every feasible land route is already cut. Athens and its port of Piraeus were occupied yesterday by seaborne units after the Germans fled. Once the breaking of the German hold in Greece began, developments came too fast even for the planning and execution of Allied follow-up operations.

A British paratrooper formation jumped yesterday in a 30-mile gale for the purpose of securing the Megara airfield, 28 miles west of Athens. Instead of being greeted by bullets from Nazis the paratroopers were met by jubilant Greek civilians, grinning British soldiers and war correspondents.

A column of British daredevils had taken both the town and airport of Megara the preceding Sunday night. RAF planes were already using the airport.

Beyond the bare announcement Saturday night that the capital and its port were freed, Allied headquarters gave no report on the situation in Athens.

Fiance Missing In Action, Girl Here Joins WAC

By JOY BARNETT.

Eight months ago to the day her sweetheart was reported missing in action. Saturday she was sworn into the Army Medical Department to do her part in helping wounded veterans back to healthy normal lives.

Jeanine Williamson, wearing the gold wings of her missing Navy pilot, and four other Atlanta girls spoke the solemn oath together. With Mary Virginia Everett and Mrs. Blanche E. McSherry, two of her friends, she decided to join the medical technicians, after seeing a film about the vital work these women are doing and hearing Army officials say that 20,000 are needed before the end of this year.

When the three came down to WAC recruiting headquarters, of 322 in the New Post Office building, they met Lucille I. Danglerfield and Frances J. Berry. After talking a while, the five attractive girls discovered that they had all chosen November 9 as the day they will leave for Fort Oglethorpe and their six-week basic training. Jeanine and Mrs. McSherry, both employees of the Bell Telephone Company, became interested in the opportunities offered the medical technicians during their work as Red Cross nurse's aides. Jeanine, who lives at 1612 St. Charles avenue, N. E., has completed over 150 hours since her graduation from Auburn with a B. S. degree. She will go to an Army general hospital to serve as a psychiatric assistant, following her basic training.

Mrs. McSherry, whose husband is in France, has completed 225 hours' hospital duty. Applying for duty as a medical technician, she will not have to take further hospital training. S. Sgt. Frank McSherry, in the Transportation Corps, has been overseas 16 months out of the 22 he has been in service. Mrs. McSherry, who lives at 1181 Stewart avenue, joined only after she heard that she, like all married WACs, can have a furlough when her husband comes home, and a discharge in the event that he is discharged from the Army when he returns.

HELPING SERVICEMEN
The third in the trio of old friends, Mary Virginia Everett, was working in the Department of Justice as a secretary, when she talked with Jeanine and Mrs. McSherry. She discovered, with them, that here was work that she could do to benefit the men who are coming home in ever-increasing numbers. Mary Virginia, of 2086 Boulevard drive, was graduated with an A. B. degree from Mercer University in February.

After she completes the Fort Oglethorpe training, she will go to Camp Atterbury, Ind., for further training as a laboratory technician. She, as every volunteer to the medical department, got to choose her branch of work.

The remaining two girls of the Atlanta quintet, of volunteers are Lucille I. Danglerfield, of 1487 Woodbine avenue, N. E., and Frances J. Berry, of 229 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E.

GIRLS' HIGH ALUMNAE
Along with Mary Virginia, Jeanine and Blanche, Lucille Danglerfield was graduated from Atlanta Girls' High school. She attended the Creighton Business College and has worked as a secretary and librarian.

The five girls urged others like them, who have had technical training, or who feel that their aptitude and education will qualify them, to attend the showing of a film about the medical technicians at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday and Thursday. The movie will be shown in the recruiting office at 322 New Post Office building.

IF YOU THINK DEWEY WILL WIN— $1 WILL GET YOU $2.50; FDR IS 1-3

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—(P)—President Roosevelt is a 1-3 choice to win the November election, meaning a bettor must wager $3 to win $1, and the odds on Gov. Dewey are 2-1-1, meaning a bettor who puts up $1 will win $2.50 if Dewey is elected, Betting Commissioner James J. Carroll said today.

Carroll listed 29 states with 298 electoral votes in the Roosevelt column. The other 19 states with 235 electoral votes are in the Dewey column but the odds on Illinois, New York and New Jersey voting the Republican ticket are so close as to be uncertain, Carroll said. The same odds of 5-6 are quoted on both Democratic and Republican candidates in those three states. Of the states considered likely to vote Democratic, the betting chart shows Missouri, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Massachusetts and New Hampshire as those in which the election will be closest. The Roosevelt bettor must wager $5 to win $3 while the Dewey bettor must wager $5 to win $6.

In Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Florida and Virginia, the Roosevelt odds are 1-6 and the Dewey odds 6-1. The Roosevelt odds in Tennessee are 1-4 and on Dewey 3-1.

So Your Car was Crowded?

IN Atlanta, overcrowded trolleys and buses are the exception. There is enough service to provide comfortable transportation for everyone. While the number of riders has increased enormously since the beginning of the war, the increase in the number of vehicles on the streets has kept pace.

More street cars, trackless trolleys and buses are being operated now than ever before in Atlanta's history. This means more convenient service for riders, because the waiting time between cars is less.

On most lines, at most times of day, there is adequate service for all needs—peacetime service under war conditions.

Of course, a car comes along occasionally that is jammed and packed. When that happens, it is usually due to the fact that the car has fallen behind schedule. It has been held up by traffic or by some other delay.

If an overcrowded car pulls up to your stop, let it go by and get the one right behind. Probably the next car is not more than a block or two away. If you wait for the second car, you will have a more comfortable ride and get to your destination just about as quickly.

OPERATORS

WANTED

To provide even more trolley and bus service, we need more men and women to train for jobs as operators. If you are a man between 21 and 45 or a woman between 21 and 35, with no serious physical defects, your application will be welcome. Apply to Mr. Ben Nixon at 36 Piedmont Avenue any day except Saturday or Sunday. Operating a trolley or bus is essential work in a permanent type of business.

New Tax Plan Faces Mayor, Council Airing

Proposal Relieving Ad Valorem Payers On Today's Agenda

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

City Attorney Jack C. Savage will present to the mayor and council today a proposal to broaden the city's tax structure to relieve ad valorem taxpayers and more equitably distribute the burden of local government.

In a 25-page study of the tax structure of Atlanta compared with other cities, Savage deals with a number of new revenue sources and warns that unless reforms in local taxation are made local governments will face a serious situation.

Highlights of the Savage study are:

1. The state of Georgia collected $37,972,855 from gasoline, license tag and occupational taxes in 1942 and that 20 per cent of this was paid by persons residing in Atlanta. Savage inferred that some of this fund should come back to local governments.

2. In 1943 there were 36 federal land-owning agencies, but that only 11 were subject to payment of any sums for local governmental services, and that this about 65 per cent of real estate has borne practically the entire cost of local governments through levy of ad valorem taxes.

3. Atlanta could collect approximately $3,000,000 annually through enactment of an occupational tax similar to that in force in Philadelphia—one-half of one

Sgt. Mrozinski Missing in Action

S. Sgt. Anthony J. Mrozinski, 25, of the Parachute Infantry, has been missing in action over Holland since September 19, the War Department has advised his wife, Mrs. Sue M. Mrozinski, of 152 Holiday avenue, N. E.

Entering the service September 24, 1940, Mrozinski was trained at Camp Blanding, Fla., Fort Benning, Ga., and Camp Mackall, N. C., before going overseas in December, 1943. He was wounded in the invasion of France.

The son of Mrs. Edward Falicki, of Philadelphia, Pa., he has three brothers in the service: Seaman Richard G. Mrozinski, and Seaman William E. Falicki, both with the Navy, and Gunner Sgt. Dick Falicki, of the Marines.

per cent on incomes, with a possible exemption for those making less than $1,500 annually. Philadelphia raised $24,782,000 from that source in 1942, while Atlantans contributed $5,962,910 in ad valorem taxes in 1943.

4. Operation of public parking and garage facilities and establishment of a system of parking meters would bring considerable revenue to the city, would assist in controlling traffic and would reduce the cost of enforcement. Oklahoma City obtains $65,000 annually from parking meters alone, while Toledo gets benefits estimated at $98,202.

5. Relief of real estate through levy of an occupying tax on tenants would more equitably distribute the burden—a system which has been in operation in many European countries for many years. This system would protect owners and enable them to make other investments.

The Savage plan calls for a combination of payment by the owner and the renter and cites that, under the present system, the renter now pays practically the entire cost in higher rents.

6. Approximately 77,000 Atlantans make tax returns each year, but only 66,000 return household furniture, and less than 9,000 return other personal property. This should be revised and adequate returns provided.

7. Delinquent city taxes amount to many thousands of dollars, and some method of providing a "marketable title" in sales of property for taxes should be devised.

8. Business licenses should be revised to protect merchants and others, but caution should be exercised to avoid stifling of free trade.

9. A heated attack on salary buyers, which Savage said charge in excess of 500 per cent a year. He proposed a $1,000 license of money lenders in lieu of the present $250 annual fee.

10. A warning that limitation of liquor store licenses to 150 has made liquor permits valuable and salable through creation of a virtual monopoly. Savage cites that in some instances licenses have been sold by one owner to another who wishes to enter the business for as much as $5,000. He said the city should avoid establishing a premium for liquor permits.

11. Asserting that he is not a tax expert, but that his studies are predicated on and localized as a result of the report which he filed with National Institute of Municipal Law Officers, Savage prepared to file his proposals at council session.

Savage was chairman of the institute's committee on revenue and tax, and filed his report with the national organization several months ago.

What of the Postwar Farmer?

Books have been written about what we intend to do for the returning soldier. But what of the postwar farmer? Agriculture has contributed as many men to the war as any other line of American enterprise . . . probably more than its share, if the vital importance of food to our war effort is considered. Certainly it has made as heroic efforts . . . and produced as good results. Are we going to leave the farmer to get out of the post-war depression in farm prices the best he can?

Secretary Claude Wickard, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has outlined an eight-point program for the farmer that should have the attention of business men as well as farm leaders throughout the nation. The eight points are:

1. Full production at maximum efficiency.
2. Equal living standards for farm and city families.
3. Soil conservation and improvement.
4. Equal protection for all types of farmers.
5. Conservation and improvement of forest resources.
6. Encouragement of the family-sized farm.
7. Retirement of sub-marginal land and the reclamation and cultivation of potentially good farm land.
8. Improvements in the marketing of farm products.

In outlining this program, Secretary Wickard points out that the three most important conditions to be met to insure a sound agriculture are (a) full employment in this country at fair wages and salaries, (b) assistance to low income families in obtaining more and better food and textiles, and (c) exportation of a certain volume of our farm products.

Two facts are apparent in this program.

The first is that the social advances made under the New Deal must be maintained and expanded, if a sufficient home market is to be obtained for our farm products . . . and, as a corollary to that, present support of minimum farm prices must be continued.

The second is that a sound agriculture cannot stand by itself. It must be part of that tripod of which government and business are the other two legs. If wages drop, farm prices must inevitably fall with them. And if wages are maintained, farm prices will, of necessity, follow.

Right now, farmers should be thinking, not of how they can get more for their products, but of how they are going to prevent that drop in farm prices which has followed every war of any consequence and that, barring some miracle, will probably follow this one.

Their hope does not lie with Dewey and his vague and indeterminate promises, but with the administration which has brought them such a long way since 1929 . . . and which is their only hope of holding the gains which they have thus far made.

Continuation and expansion of our present program of social consciousness offer the farmer of this country his only hope of future prosperity.

Politics and Foreign Policy

It is doubtful if there is anything so important to the future of the world as the foreign policy of the United States during the next few years. It may well be that the fate of civilization will depend upon steadfast continuity of the American program of full support to international co-operation for the prevention of future wars.

The achievements of Secretary of State Cordell Hull in removing foreign policy from political partisan issues in this country have been important as far as they have gone. There is, however, no assurance whatsoever that, should there be a change in administration after the coming November election, there would not be such changes in our relations with other nations that the whole pattern of the co-operation we have achieved in war would be lost when we approach the even greater and more pressing world problems of peace.

It is this uncertainty as to the continuity of American policy which makes it so difficult for the three great powers—America, Britain and Russia—to reach binding agreement on any future program.

Stalin represents a permanent government. Churchill, while certainly facing an election as soon as the war is over, is just as certainly the official spokesman for Britain for the duration and, even should there be a change in government at London, British foreign policy must, for self-evident reasons, continue in the same general trend.

Thus the attitude of the United States in the future is the great uncertainty. It poses the unanswered question which, at least until after the November election result is known, must complicate all international programs and agreements.

For this one reason alone, continuity of foreign policy, it is critically necessary that President Roosevelt be re-elected and serve another term—during which time it is to be hoped that the United States can totally divorce its basic foreign policy from domestic partisan politics.

There is no greater traitor than the demagogue who would sacrifice the world hope of lasting peace upon the altar of his own ambition to gain, or retain, public office.

Freedom for India

Editor, Constitution: While our so-called statesmen are expatiating on the subject of the manumission of the enslaved nations of the world, why not concentrate some of their attention on far-away India, with her teeming millions crying for liberation. Let's establish a rapprochement and entente cordiale with all nations, whether or not we care to give our complete approbation to their philosophy and their modus operandi of government.

If we really have set out to feed and clothe the people of the world, then let's do a good job. Yes, the people of India would also like to be free, but as long as Gandhi, the brilliant scholar of Oxford, and who, ostensibly, is the tool of the British Empire, in keeping the masses of India's people in complete subjugation, then we need not hope to see the 400,000,000 of India extricated from their difficult plight.

Some day, the great mass of Indian people is going to emerge from their state of political lethargy, and make their independence a fait accompli.

ated. She has certainly no heart, she could at least be kind with her very crude remarks. Hers bespeak the hard-boiled manner of some people, and much indignation can be said of her kind. Thank heaven they are few when it comes to a desire to help the service people, especially those being returned ill of mind and body. We hope the captain will overlook this very insulting, unpatriotic female.

(Editor's Note—The captain complained that a woman with rooms to rent said, "I am not interested in service people.") Recently an Atlanta paper printed a letter referring to the Atlanta Chapter No. 1 of the American War Dads expressing appreciation of their visiting and serving fried chicken to a certain ward where 31 of these precious Sons of Mothers and Dads are confined. There are many, many others that should be visited and entertained, some with one leg or arm gone and many with both. All dads are invited into this national organization. All mothers of sons or daughters in the service should insist that their husbands attend the next meeting, October 27, at 8 p. m. at the Piedmont Hotel.

The real estate folks have a terrific problem trying to place all of those who come to Atlanta to be near loved ones. If you could put yourself into a position of trying to be near your own son or husband in a hospital in some distant city and had similar treatment, well, we leave the answer to you. Through genuine patriotic organizations problems of this kind can be handled with 1,000 of the probable 10,000 Atlanta fathers in the work of American War Dads. You can enter into just one of the many worthy services to our service men now and in the future. You dads are invited to join our crusade.

Red Herring?

Editor Constitution: Mr. Roosevelt's speech Thursday night was one of evasion as were his campaign promises.

He seems to like the "red herring" idea. Said that his opponents were dragging red herrings, in other words, they were misrepresenting the issues—that his party was consorting with Communists was a red herring, etc.

Was his pardoning Earl Browder a red herring? Was his consorting with Ben Tobin a red herring? Was the decision of HIS supreme court a red herring? Is his condoning of practical confiscation of farmers' produce when it enters a city a red herring? Is the fact that a worker on government work is being forced to pay out money to join the union and contribute to his campaign a red herring? That red herring is going to bite him hard if he doesn't look out.

Dempsey Meets Carpentier in Paris

There was just a paragraph or so under a Paris dateline. It said that Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier had met in Paris and, for the benefit of the photographers, struck up a static pose or so.

They deserved more space because they staged what the late Tex Rickard called a "fistic drama" back in 1921 which inaugurated an era later to be known as "The Great Foolishness."

There have been in our years of prize-ring history just five fights that ran to a million dollars or more. William Harrison (Jack) Dempsey participated in all of them. He and Georges Carpentier were the principals in the first one, July 2, 1921, at Boyle's Thirty Acres.

If you are one of the younger generation it may be safe to ask your mother about this one. She will recall it. Never was our nation so emotionally attracted to a prize fight as to this one in which the "Orchid Man," hero of the great war, handsome, possessed of the social graces, a dancer and a speaker of romantic phrases, came over to fight our frowning, Indian-visaged Jack Dempsey, who had done a little shipyard work during the war. Georges, gushed the sweet young girl reporters assigned to write features about him, had dared all to make the world safe for democracy.

Until that fight the prize ring was associated with the lower things in life. But Tex Rickard, an ex-gambler with a natural if untutored genius for psychology, was to make the prize ring an altar about which gathered the social elite of New York. Rickard knew the value of Dempsey as a psychological force even if he did not know the word itself. He always had a mixture of the hero and the villain in all his great attractions, and in each of them was Dempsey. Joe Louis and Max Schmeling, with the same psychological factor of the hero and the Nazi villain, pushed up the gate receipts to more than $900,000, but even they never hit the million-dollar jackpot.

July 2, 1921 Never was there so much gush written as was written about "Gorgeous Georges." Even the late Arthur Brisbane, who once had been a sports writer, descended to write a column or so about the approaching fight. Usually he confined himself to the simple statement before all fights that a gorilla could whip both fighters. But Carpentier stirred him. Carpentier trained near to Oyster Bay, smack in the social set, so to speak, and they went for him. His training camp workouts were packed with dowagers and debutantes who peered with eager eyes at the rather frail Frenchman who really was never more than a good light-heavyweight.

Came the day of the fight. The great wooden arena was packed. Some 75,000 persons were there and most of them wanted Carpentier to win. Jack Dempsey told me later on that his greatest fear was on him as he came to that ring. He was not a slacker but there were critics who said so. Carpentier was a soldier of France. Dempsey was afraid of the reaction because he wanted his own people to like him. He got a lot of cheers mingled with boos. It set the heavy look more deeply on his unshaven, dark-scowling face. It was not much of a fight. The crouching Dempsey, one of the greatest fighters of all times, knocked Gorgeous Georges kicking in the fourth round. Carpentier was courageous, but he was not very good and he was up against one of the greatest.

When Dempsey's hand was raised a great cheer went up. After all, an American had won. Dempsey said, in the same conversation in which he told me of his fear, that he was to receive many ovations in his life and to know many great moments. But none was as sweet as that cheer when Carpentier was beaten.

The Gates That fight drew $1,626,580. The figure was a stunning one. But so was Dempsey. By 1923 a real villain had appeared. Luis Angel Firpo had come out of the Argentine to take back with him "the fastest haub of fisticuffs," as the announcers used to say. Who would prevent it? Why our own Jack Dempsey, of course. Hadn't he kept it from being taken to France? "The Wild Bull of the Pampas" really was wild. He knocked our Mr. Dempsey entirely out of the ring onto the typewriters of sportswriters at the ringside. He almost won, but Dempsey knocked him out in the second round. That fight had a gate of $1,082,590.

In the third million-dollar fight Dempsey was again the villain in so far as Tex Rickard's "nicest people" were concerned. After all, he was the champion, and the challenger was a studious young man who had been with the Marines in the first World War and who had risen from poverty to riches. He had been accepted by the nicest people and he did not care for the coarse, cap-wearing persons of the prize-ring camps. He admitted to reading Shakespeare and later on he was to be invited to lecture on that subject by the late Billy Phelps, of Yale. Because he read books a lot of persons disliked him very much. They went to see Dempsey knock the Shakespeare out of the "book-reading dude."

That fight, which Tunney won by a studious lot of back-pedaling away from Dempsey's hard hand, was another of the fighting audiences of the nation. The fight drew $1,895,723, and Rickard happily proceeded with an "elimination" contest, and at last Dempsey and Jack Sharkey met and won the right to fight Tunney for the title. The "gate" had been $1,083,529.

Tunney and Dempsey met again, September 22, 1927, at Chicago. By this time most of the sentiment was with Dempsey. He came very close to winning. A knockdown and a long count, and came when Dempsey violated the rule about retreating to a neutral corner during the knockdown count, was the great feature which still is discussed in prize-ring society. But he again was beaten.

One hundred and five thousand persons saw the fight and the all-time highwater mark of $2,650,000 was the result. In five fights with Dempsey in the ring the American people paid $8,600,000 to see.

Now Dempsey and Carpentier meet in Paris. Dempsey is a commander in the physical training department of the Navy. Carpentier has had a bar and a night spot since he retired. He lasted all through the occupation. They were the first principals in the greatest era the boxing game ever knew.

THE OTHER SIDE

Anti-Administration Comment

Savannah Morning News One of the major issues of the 1944 election is the re-establishment of constitutional government. That was the point emphasized by Gov. John W. Bricker in his speech accepting the vice presidential nomination.

Both Republican candidates show that they intend to give the people of the country a chance to express a choice. Do they want a continuance of the present, registration, collectivism, with a totalitarian trend, or do they prefer to return to the democratic republic as designed by the founders of the nation?

This is a year of vital decision, Gov. Bricker explained. The people have a chance to say with their votes if they wish a change and a return to the American constitutional system with congress and the courts taken out of their present roles, and the local authority freed from the usurpation of a highly centralized national government. Concisely Gov. Bricker summarized all the domestic issues in one question: Shall the United States continue to be a republic?

The Republican candidates have made an excellent start in this campaign by explaining to the people that the trend in this country is strongly toward statism and away from democratic rule. The present administration has worked such alteration by building needless bureaucracy, taking responsibility from the cabinet; driving recklessly toward centralization of power in federal government; taking away individual freedom.

There is a need for release from this restrictive and resentful under the left-wing totalitarianism of the New Deal. They can vote for the candidates pledged to change back to representative government.

Christian Science Monitor

Those who expected Gov. Dewey to duplicate in West Virginia the spirited, slashing rejoinder he made in Oklahoma to President Roosevelt may have been disappointed. Yet it was an incisive, hard-hitting speech.

In dealing with the Roosevelt relation to Communism, Mr. Dewey cited startling figures showing that there are 55 federal corporations or agencies having 27 billions in assets, and that one-fifth of American manufacturing plants are owned or operated by the government. Presented as confirmation of his charge that Assistant Secretary of State Berle had said that the government would "gradually come to own most of the productive plants" in the United States, the figures have alarmed many citizens.

Some persons on second thought will realize that these are wartime figures and will question Mr. Dewey's whole argument. The impression he created is extreme. Mr. Berle's full statement reads more like a defense of free enterprise than an approach to Communism and congress has already set up plans for selling the war plants. Yet some plants probably will be retained indefinitely. Moreover, plans for release from the extension of lend-lease, and other activities can be cited as examples of government in business.

While political scientists do not define such thing as Communism, the average American senses a trend toward collectivism—and distrusts it. Mr. Dewey should be more accurate, but he is correct in contending that the Communists welcome this trend.

In this speech Mr. Dewey developed a new point—criticism of Mr. Roosevelt's handling of war production. In view of his own failure to foresee war, he was somewhat unfair in charging a belated start with the War Resources Board, but he did score fairly and heavily in recounting the series of war production agencies Mr. Roosevelt tried in 1940 and 1941. And he hit a vulnerable spot in attacking fumbling, disjointed administration.

The Republican candidate would do well to dig even more deeply into this part of the record and to outline more specific correctives. One of his chief attractions is an organizational sense which has been sadly lacking in Washington these many years.

Humility As a Virtue

Why is humility a virtue?

Because only infallible gods could be trusted with self-satisfied pride; because only humility can protect man from man.

Man is born with a competitive spirit. From infancy to tottering old age he strives to excel his brothers—to prove himself in some way superior.

When he has got ahead of others, he is not content merely to feel superior. He must demonstrate his superiority; use his power; make a show of his wealth. The kind of superiority that is most dangerous is moral superiority—the feeling of superior righteousness often called self-righteousness.

The man who feels superior in righteousness is not content to enjoy the feeling in private or to demonstrate his superiority by the righteousness of his conduct.

He begins to regard himself as a god, and yearns to create others in his own image. He would require everybody to believe and act as he does. He detests those who seem inferior; he criticizes and berates them; if he has the power, he may coerce, intimidate, imprison, torture or kill them.

Now he needs humility. Pride of birth or learning or wealth may make him hateful, but self-righteousness can make him a dreadful scourge. Humility would save him, and save others from him.

It would say: "Wait! Man is fallible, and you may be wrong."

But his ego, drunk with self-righteousness, assures him that everything he does is right. The Puritans who hanged witches thought they were doing right. The churchmen who tortured and murdered "heretics" and slaughtered "heathen" thought they were doing right. The French queen who planned the bloody purge of Protestants thought she was doing right. Even Hitler thinks he is doing right when he murders Jews. No man could murder men, women and children if his conscience told him it was wrong.

Ignorance which has power may not be dangerous if it is tempered by humility. But without humility it can be as dangerous and merciless as a rattlesnake.

All are sinful and none is free of faults, yet in every community there are a few who feel perfectly righteous and infallible. Pride of righteousness and scorn of their faulty neighbors combine to make them merciless. Their hearts seem filled with venom and all uncharitableness. Yet all they need to make them good people is the saving grace of humility, for by its light they would see themselves as they are and vanity would give way to healing shame.

Sober Citizens Be on the Lookout . . .

New York city police are on the lookout for one Betty Eagley, sometimes known as Betty Embrey and again as Darlene Egan.

Miss Eagley or Embrey or Egan or whatever her current fancy has run afoul of the law and is the subject of a rather widespread search in the Manhattan area.

All of which is nothing to get excited about, inasmuch as not a few of the denizens of Florentia's ballroom are constantly committing misdemeanors of one sort or another. The thing that struck me about the incident is the fact that this particular one is identified as having an eagle tattooed on one arm, the word "Monroe" tattooed on the other, and, yes, four legs, having built up an enviable reputation in the theatrical world as one of the more successful tented attractions.

No further description is given, but it seems to me that, by the simple expedient of examining all the four-legged ladies they encounter until they come across one with an eagle on one arm and "Monroe" on the other, the gendarmes should eventually be able to locate her for whom they seek.

The story didn't say. And so I can't help but wonder. For what is she wanted . . . stealing shoe coupons?

RALPH T. JONES

They Still Have Hope Of Victory This Year

Knowing that the remaining weeks of even approximately decent weather in France, Belgium and western Germany are but few, the average man has inclined, recently, to hold but faint hope the war with Germany will end this year.

Yet, according to usually reliable advices from overseas, there is still a strong belief among civilian leaders that the final German collapse is coming in the next four to six weeks. What the military leaders believe they are, naturally, not telling.

Well, even with what knowledge we have, it is possible to review the factors on which this hope for early surrender by the Germans is based.

The Eastern Front In the first place, we must not forget the eastern front. Late developments there give rather clear evidence the Russians are opening a new and powerful offensive all along the line. The Soviet armies have proved that winter is no deterrent to their fighting power.

That season of frozen earth and ice is already beginning in the north. There the Russians are mounting a terrific offensive against East Prussia. That outlying territory of the Reich will, almost inevitably, be conquered before Christmas. Hungary will be out of the war. So, in all likelihood, will be pre-Anschluss Austria. The Germans will be entirely eliminated in the Balkans. In short, Russian armies will be fighting either along the borders of Germany proper or inside the land of the Nazis. They won't be far from Berlin by the end of the year, even if the war is not over.

Now Look at the West On the western front, where our troops, the British and the French are aligned against the common foe, there is now gathering so great a weight of material that, by sheer mechanized fighting power, Eisenhower either has today or will have soon, the ability to smash through the German defenses of the Siegfried line and the Rhine, wherever he decides the best point for attack.

Observers who have seen the operation of the Allied services of supply report that it is an almost-unbelievable miracle. Long lines of high-speed trucks are roaring across France, almost bumper to bumper. They speed along, day and night, 24 hours daily, eating up the miles. At their points of destination they are unloaded in miraculously short time, serviced and sent rushing back for new loads.

Did you know that our front-line vehicles are supplied with gasoline by pipe lines? The story of the laying of these lines is a saga of American ability. They are laid so fast, it is reported, they were able to keep up with our front-line forces even during the rapid advance from Normandy to Paris and beyond. They never fell more than 20 miles behind the front, with their termini.

Gen. Somervell, chief of our Army Services of Supply, once said that when Hitler elected to fight this war "on wheels" he gave to the United States a tremendous advantage, right at the jump, because we are a nation which operates on wheels, more so than any other.

Is the Shell Thin? Most reports coming out of Germany indicate that, militarily speaking, Germany is nothing but a vacuum once we get through the present lines of defense. Of course, the Siegfried line and the Rhine defenses are tough. But, it is believed, once we smash through that defense area, the going inside Germany may well be as rapid as it was in France after we had broke the Normandy defense line.

We may, it is said, go to Berlin as rapidly as we went to Paris, once the outer shell is broken.

Of course, conditions inside Germany will be far different than inside France. On the road to Paris we had the invaluable help of the French themselves, the Maquis, the FFI and the entire population. Inside Germany we shall not be liberators, but conquerors. We shall have the sullen hatred of the population and may well have to dig out guerrillas and underground fighters for a long time after the real war is over.

But the fact remains we may see, in the next month or so, the final collapse of German defense in west and east and south and then discover there is nothing they have left to oppose our triumphant sweep into Berlin. Let us, at least, hope so. Important people in London believe this will be the story, anyway.

An American Credo and Whence It Came

(Editor's Note: Eric Johnston is president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. His recent book, "America Unlimited," is of such merit that The Constitution has secured permission to reprint from it in column form. Many citizens, unable to purchase the original document, will want to clip and preserve this series by a man who believes that a people's capitalism will work.)

The things a man believes most profoundly are rarely on the surface of his mind or the tip of his tongue. Newly acquired notions, formulas learned by rote from books, decisions based on expediency, the fashionable ideas of the moment—these are right on top of the pile, ready to be sampled and displayed in bright after-dinner conversation. But the things that make up a man's philosophy of life are somewhere way down below. They are imbedded in the depths of his existence, flesh and bone of his bone.

He may be wholly unaware that he possesses anything resembling a philosophy of life. Probably he has not thought of it in such grandiose terms. Yet it was there all the time. The truths he lives by, whether he knows it or not, assumptions, preferences, and prejudices so much a part of him that he has never felt the urge to explain or to justify them. A code of behavior that requires no act of explanation, because it is shared by his neighbors and rarely, if ever, disputed by public opinion.

When the need arises to get at these basic beliefs and examine them—as in the case of a man writing a quite personal book like this one—he discovers that he must dig and dredge and sift the stuff of his personal history. He discovers, in fact, that his own biography is not enough. The biographies of his countrymen, and of the endless generations stretching behind them, enter into it. He discovers that his underlying convictions are not peculiarly his own at all. They seem woven into the texture of his period in time, his community, his country.

Some of the strands lead clearly to his religious background and thus tie him into centuries of Judeo-Christian ethics and teachings. Others extend no less clearly to the economic world into which he was born and within which he has had to make his way. These tie him into centuries of American striving and achievement, frustrations and conquests. Still other strands that enter into the pattern of his mind are curiously local, taking their color from rugged hills and wide spaces and breath-taking horizons; they might almost be set down as the geographical element in his personal philosophy.

Rightly or wrongly, I can assure myself that in speaking for Eric Johnston I am speaking for a great legion of Eric Johnstons. What makes my essential ideas and hopes significant, I can tell myself, is not their quality of uniqueness but the fact that they are fairly typical, and certainly widespread. When the Horatio Alger rags-to-riches tradition is referred to nowadays there is too often a note of derision in the speaker's voice. That seems to me both ungracious and unnecessary, because there are still two very remarkable facts about the celebrated Alger rags of little tykes who grow into big tycoons.

The first is that they are true, not in the literal sense but in the symbolic sense. They truly express a commonplace of American experience. Many of our presidents have come from log cabins, from poor farms, out of boyhoods of want and drudgery.

One other fact should be noted about our American folklores of success, and that is its youth. Horatio Alger died in 1899. The customs of other nations have their roots in an old, gnarled past, whereas ours, good and bad alike, are comparatively fresh. Let us never lose the consciousness of the youth and freshness of our American civilization!

The second fact about the Alger tradition is that it is deeply American. It comes as near as anything we have to a body of folklore. It embraces economic prowess, revolving around men who attained wealth for themselves or for their country by opening up new industries or new territories and devising new and better ways of doing things. Americans have not yet become accustomed to looking upon poverty as an insuperable, or even serious, obstacle.

My boyhood, as I look back upon it, seems curiously pleasant despite its externals. It had its shadows, of course, but on the whole it is diffused with the colors of self-confidence. Spokane was growing with it. Unconsciously I soaked the expansive freedom of spirit that was in the wide vistas of the far west and strength that was in the rugged, untamed country of the Spokane river.

The very air seemed to throb with the impulse of "making good." Selling papers while in grade school, later reporting for the Spokane Spokesman Review at three and a half dollars a column while in high school, working on the Seattle docks while in college, seemed to me less the signs of poverty than the proofs of opportunity and success to come.

The penury in which I grew up was of the genteel variety without sordid overtones. My ancestors fought in the Revolutionary War, and my grandfather was a successful lawyer in the national capital, also farming a large acreage in gentlemanly style north of Keokuk, Iowa. My father, also originally from Iowa, was a chemist, or, as we would say today, a pharmacist. The depression of 1894 nearly finished off his modest drugstore in Washington, D. C., and in 1896, a year after my birth, he took his family to the northwest. He tried to make a go of it in Marysville, Montana, now a ghost town—but after some 18 months moved to Spokane. There he started another drugstore, which netted only another failure, and finally a protracted illness overtook him that eventually caused his death.

For my mother, the ways of the raw village of Spokane must have been an ordeal. The mudholes, the crudity of the new community, the unfamiliar burdens, contrasted with the ease of her upbringing. The illness of my father meant that she was the sole support of the family. She went to work in offices at that time, and in that place, in itself a kind of pioneering. But somehow all of it toughened her spirit without hurting its texture.

Looking back at it all, I recognize that she must have known sharp fears and distressing defeats. But what she transmitted to her son was a little of the granite of her spirit—and the velvet of her human sympathy.

An uncle of mine, a lawyer in Seattle, offered to keep a staff job open for me if I would study law. On graduating from high school, I therefore set off for the state university at Seattle. To cover expenses, I got a job longshoring on the Seattle docks. Leaving my law classes on Friday, I worked a 10-hour night shift on the docks, sleeping all day Saturday, and another 10-hour shift on Saturday night, sleeping all day Sunday. The pay was 78 cents an hour. Later, a job as law librarian at 75 dollars a month enabled me to quit longshoring and to get in more studying.

Communique From Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood's latest fight is between the producers and decorators. The decorators walked out on them and they don't have any sets. This afternoon Charles Boyer had to play three love scenes in an old packing case and it was very difficult. His lower lip kept sweeping the expelior up in little piles. There is a difference of a few dollars between the decorators and the producers. You know what a producer is. That's a civilian MP with nephews. . . . W. C. Fields offered to help out in MGM. He's had a lot of experience in interior decorating. . . . Now that they don't have sets MGM is thinking about making westerns. They hired a cowboy and bought one of Crosby's horses. But the cowboy backed out. . . . He had some silly idea that the horse was supposed to carry him.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

Is Displeased With Oaks Plan

The document that was issued on October 9th (Monday) on the results of the Dumbarton Oaks conference, was described as a "Tentative Plan for a World Security Organization." Both President Roosevelt and Mr. Hull expressed full discussion by the people of this country. Discussion is necessary. But it is fortunate that this discussion will not be interrupted into the political campaign.

On October 9th, Gov. Dewey hailed the results of the Dumbarton Oaks conference as a "fine beginning" expressing satisfaction over "the wide area of agreement reached." That is well, because this plan cannot seriously be considered as part of an election in which other issues will be joined. It must be considered separately, by itself, and regardless of party. There is no necessity to accept or reject the plan within the next few weeks. For the time being we have the grand alliance of the United Nations, which is waging a war, and the questions raised by the Dumbarton Oaks document concern future generations.

Nevertheless, the Dumbarton Oaks plan comes as a profound disillusionment to those of us who strive for the hope that it would bring a war, and the questions raised by the Dumbarton Oaks document concern future generations. It is not a plan for a world organization. The most hopeful thing is that it is still tentative.

It begins with an untruthful statement. "The organization is based on the principle of equal sovereign equality of all peace-loving states." It is not based on this principle. It is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of three to five great powers. All the rest of the states of mankind—some fifty-five of them—lose their sovereignty under this arrangement. In the most crucial question—to go to war or not—they abdicate in favor of the big three to five.

Now, I want to make myself clear. I am not opposed to restrictions on sovereignty. On the contrary, I believe, as the writers of the American federalist papers brilliantly demonstrated, that it is impossible to create an organization of states that will function in peace and unity, except through a law of their mutual creation, sovereign above them.

But an organization of the world in which three to five states have complete sovereignty, and all the rest of the world de facto has none, is an intolerable travesty on the ideals for which we have been fighting.

Under this agreement every vestige of power rests in the security council. There are even proscriptions against verbal interference by the assembly of the world states, in the deliberations and decisions of the council. The entire assembly of nations has not even a veto right, while it is clear from the stand taken this week in the Soviet press, that any one of the great powers alone shall have a full veto.

It lacks the three essentials of a functioning structure for the creation and enforcement of a law of nations—i. e., Peace.

These are: (1) A sovereign independent body to whom power can be delegated by the world's states and peoples.

(2) A real international instrument for enforcement.

(3) A representative system.

A great many words, set forth in sections and paragraphs, work to create the illusion that these essentials exist. But a careful study shows they have all been emasculated to give the big powers away over the globe.

It does not even create a grand alliance of great powers. A grand alliance presumes a common purpose, a common will. But this document, at the very outset, accepts regional agencies and works to establish regional spheres of influence. The inevitable result must be that every small and medium-sized nation will have to align itself inside the sphere of one or another of the great powers. Only thus can they achieve protection.

It amounts to dividing up the world into spheres or zones between great powers.

And the entire assumption, on which the peace of our world and the lives of our children is at rest, is that these three to five powers, not equal among themselves in actual power, will continue to agree about the disposition of the earth. If they disagree, the entire structure becomes utterly powerless.

On the other hand, if they do agree, the plan is unnecessary. It is nothing but a means by which the great powers can keep in contact with each other for the discussion of measures for avoiding war. Such opportunities already exist—for that we have foreign offices.

The theory behind the plan is that it will be easier to govern the world for peace if there are but a tiny number of powers with everything else a blank. Leaving out of account that the theory is the repudiation of democracy, it is most dangerously fallacious. For it inevitably will lead to attempts of the great powers to extend the areas of their influence relation to each other.

Yet the periodic breakdowns of peace have never been due to small nations, but precisely to struggles between great powers.

DAMON RUNYON

Manhattan Memories

Naturally the first place I pointed for on arriving in New York recently was Lindy's restaurant at 50th and Broadway, but it was on a Monday and the joint was shuttered, which seemed to me a most deplorable spectacle, because I can remember when it was never closed.

By the way, I heard Leo Linderman, who is the Lindy in question, has made himself ill by dieting. He used to be a roly-poly, a great ad for his vittles, but suddenly he got rich as mud and vain. He wanted to get himself a figure like Johnny Broderick, the policeman, used to have.

So he dieted, a fine way of boosting mostly, if you ask me. He fell away to what Eddie Walker, the fight manager, told me was "nuttin'." I have not seen Lindy up to this writing, but am very anxious to clap peepers on him as I want to see what nuttin' well.

Anyway, Libby's Beach, the sidewalk in front of Lindy's, named after a fellow named Libby who used to make a bit of a book around there, was fairly agog with the members of my set, horse boosters mostly, and I had quite a reunion with Butch Walker, Yoffey and Memphis and all the rest until a chubby police sergeant came bustling up crying:

"Let's go! Let's go! Let's go!"

He meant for one and all to move along, his cry being a variation of one that another copper originated right there on Libby's Beach years ago and that has been borrowed everywhere:

"Break it up, boys!"

So we shuffled our feet to give the semblance of motion, the routine that has followed the call of the law there ever since I can remember, and the chubby sergeant departed, muttering:

"And don't stand around."

I never could understand why those bulls object to social gatherings on Libby's Beach of an evening of citizens who do not knock the municipal administration or the police department, who even have a kind word now and then for the national government. But for 20 years to my personal knowledge the cops have been rushing up at intervals yelling for us to move on.

They never say where we are to move to, so lacking the information we have always pursued a policy of moving just a little so as not to get in unknown territory. In the winter time there is none of this manifestation of the majesty of the law, as some of my circle call it, because all hands gather indoors around the old base burner.

"The price is 6 to 5," Dutch Tower remarked to me as soon as we had shaken hands. "But there is not much action."

He assumed that I knew he was talking about the national election and that I also knew Roosevelt is the favorite. However, on Libby's Beach we do not cling to discussion of problems of this nature beyond the price. I mean there is no political heat. Somebody told me Memphis lost $50,000 on

OLLIE REEVES

"Eisenhower, in German language broadcast, tells German people schools will be closed as Americans occupy German villages, towns and cities."—Press Dispatch.

It's funny how some little thing appearing in the news Will start our memory sailing on a long-forgotten cruise—Some incident out of the past shines through the clouded years Affording us a hearty laugh or reminiscent tears. We remember, we remember where the little school house stood, And the teachers who were rather free in laying on the wood. Now, looking back upon those days, we frequently have felt, They might have been more sportsman-like and hit above the belt. How often when the fire bell rang, back in that little town, We dropped upon our knees and prayed the school was burning down.

Or wished an epidemic would appear upon the scene And every teacher in the world was under quarantine. But did we ever get our wish . . . or was our praying heard? It might have been, but if it was, the answer was deferred . . . The little school is standing yet and we have heard it said, The children still are wishing that the teachers all were dead. And now comes Eisenhower, telling all the German kids He's going to close the schools and put the teachers on the skids. Hurrah for him; we bet there never was a Nazi rat Who had the brain to conjure up such strategy as that!

This saves hours of searching by line crews. That's more important than ever these busy war days.

Dan Hill Writes Home

Dan Hill Jr., a great boy, is still out in the South Pacific and still hasn't seen his new son, Dan Hill III. I saw Dan's father, who operates the Palace theater in Athens, and he kindly let me have a recent letter Dan wrote to him and Mrs. Hill, who is residing in Athens.

Dan's wife and son are in New York. The former Duke football star was prominently mentioned for All-America. He was an ace center.

Here is his letter home, a letter which to me seems a stirring document so typical of countless letters mothers and fathers have been receiving since the war began. Dan Hill has been in the service more than two years now.

Dear Mother and Dad:
I have been extremely busy (on Navy detail) the last few weeks as you might have guessed and it has been almost impossible to write any letters. I was lucky enough on September 16 to receive a telegram notifying me about my son's birth. Since then I have received not a letter, so I know nothing of the details. I'm hoping that all my mail will catch up with me in a few more days so I can learn all about what has happened.

"I'm not complaining, but it certainly has been tough to have to be out here while all that was going on back home. I trust that all are well and I know that I can assume it to be so. It's really quite an experience to have to undergo, and I'm sure I could never accurately describe the feelings I have known.

"I am well and safe so please don't worry about me. My biggest problem has been and will be (until I return) a tremendous loneliness for all my loved ones. I hope and pray to God that we may soon be together again.

"The war situation has certainly improved and I hope they can clear up the European thing by Christmas. I'm still convinced that the Jap war will last another two years, but I hope to see you all but then I realize that I'm helpless until the time comes when the Navy says its ok. It can become quite a struggle at times, but I have control of my emotions and I'm in good health. I also know the great importance of the big job we have on our hands. So I just do my job to the best of my ability and wait and hope and pray. I hope that you are both well and happy. Please write to me as often as possible.

"Your devoted son, "DAN."

Anchors Aweigh

Georgia Tech players had a fight on their hands against Auburn, but they came out of the game relatively unharmed, and will begin serious preparations today for the coming Saturday's encounter with the Navy.

Tech, looking Auburn, 27 to 0, was looking ahead. No one will detract from Auburn's determination one bit. Auburn players shot for an upset. They missed. But it made for a football game. Tech relied mainly on passes. Auburn kept the ball a lot and had a margin in everything but score. And that included first downs and yards gained on running and passing. Tech led in the kicking department, which proved a pain to the Plainsmen. Red Broyles kicked splendidly all afternoon and found the coffin corners consistently.

Coach Bill Alexander was talking after the Tech-Auburn game. He was very happy at the result. But Alex was talking about a game incident.

"We took Daniel out of the game at one point because he was dropping off too much to cover Kuykendall on his runs. We sent Dorrough in and told him not to make the same mistake.

"Well, Dorrough came out of the game somewhat later and he was raving. He also had dropped off too much and he said, 'Coach, I guess I'm just as dumb as that Daniel!' Tech coaches liked the play of Jim Castleberry, Clint's brother, among many other fine performances. Dorrough was outstanding on two touchdown passes and Daniel played a whole of a game himself. As usual, Bill Chambers stood out at tackle.

And now it's the Navy, Anchors Aweigh, this week. A great event that's to be—Navy's first trip south. And Tech may go south with the Navy.

IRISH NOT SEEKING ANY MORE GAMES

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 15. (AP)—Notre Dame has a full schedule and will play no post-season games, said publicity man Ed Kennedy when asked about efforts of a local group to arrange a football game between the Irish and the Third Air Force Gremlins of Morris Field, N. C.

Kennedy, reached in Boston last night after Notre Dame had crushed Dartmouth 64 to 0, said he had not heard of the proposal but that there was no possibility of such a game.

Clark To Play Tennessee 11

Clark College's Panther will face the powerful Tennessee State Bulldogs at Ponce de Leon Park Thursday night, the game getting under way at 8:15 p. m., the first night game of the year between Negro teams here.

The Tennessee eleven is reportedly one of the strongest in the country this year, having walloped Langston University, Southwest Conference champion of 1943, by a 35-7 score last Saturday. The Nashville eleven is coached by Henry A. Kean and features a strong offensive play, the mentor believing in the old adage, "A strong offense is a good defense."

Two former Clark stars, Charles McPherson and Albert Watts, are coaching the Clark team, which has split even in two games this year, beating Daniel F. Negro team, 14-2, and dropping a decision to Tuskegee. Atlanta's David Harper is the chief offensive star, being a triple-threat.

Vols Head S. E. C. Race With 3 Wins

Three Southeastern conference football teams, Tennessee, Georgia Tech and Mississippi State, have yet to taste defeat, but in the next go-round they will be up against foes more likely to test their strength.

Tennessee's powerhouse clicked to a 40-0 victory over Florida Saturday to maintain top spot in the conference race. Previously the Vols had licked Mississippi, 20 to 7, and Kentucky, 26 to 13.

Come Saturday, Tennessee will be pitted against Alabama's Crimson Tide, always a stout game. Alabama opened with a 27-0 lead over Louisiana State, then blasted Howard, 64 to 7. Saturday it polished off Millsaps, 55 to 0.

In its first conference game of the season, Georgia Tech had its hands full in whipping Auburn. Despite the 27-0 score, it looked as though Auburn might carry off the victory until Tech passes began to click in the fourth period.

Next challenger of Tech's unbeaten, unscored-on Engineers is the Navy, which conquered Duke, 7 to 0, Saturday.

Mississippi State rolled over Arkansas A. & M. 49 to 20 for its third straight victory. Saturday night they will make their conference debut against once-tied, twice-beaten LSU.

Tulane, thrashed by mighty Notre Dame a week ago, showed it still has to be reckoned with by blanking Rice, 27 to 0. In a night game, marred by frequent fumbles, LSU lost another close one, this time a 10-0 decision by Texas A. & M.

Georgia's Bulldogs, showing improvement as the season advances, came from behind to nip Kentucky 13 to 12 Friday night. Mississippi had a week off.

Scheduled clashes this week, besides those already noted, put Georgia against Daniel field (Friday night), Auburn against Tulane, Mississippi against Tulsa and Kentucky against V. M. I. Florida has an open date.

Trippi Stars as Gremlins Beat Georgia Navy, 19-7

Ex-Bulldog Thrills Fans At Athens

Preflight Handed First
Loss of Season
By Third Air Force

By F. M. WILLIAMS

SANFORD STADIUM, Athens, Ga., Oct. 15.—Charley Trippi, still a great football player, despite nearly two years of service in the United States Army.

The 190-pound former Georgia star, whose last appearance on Sanford field was against Georgia Tech in 1942, returned this afternoon to personally take care of the Georgia Pre-Flight undefeated record, running and passing the Third Air Force of Morris Field, N. C., to a 19 to 7 victory.

TRIPPI IS WHOLE SHOW

Trippi was the whole show for the fliers, tossing two touchdown passes, setting up the other with an aerial, and playing the defense tremendously well.

Charley had just finished his sophomore year at Georgia when he went into the service and Coach Wallace Butts who watched the game from the press box, almost had apoplexy watching his former star in action.

"He'll get a special invitation back to Georgia when this war's over," Coach Butts said.

The Pre-Flight struck first in today's game, scoring on a 42-yard drive after having one effort foiled by a hard charging and vicious tackling soldier line.

Jack broke through to block Trippi's first punt attempt and Scruggs recovered at the 26. The Skycrackers drove to the three but a fourth pass was shy of a first down and Trippi kicked out to the Army 42.

Frank Stanczak raced eight yards around left end and then passed to Scruggs for a first down at the Fliers' 11. Stanczak ran to the 5, and Long plunged to the 3. Stanczak picked up a first down at the half-yard line and then Long plunged across. Leon Jones place-kicked the extra point.

Trippi set the stage for the Fliers' first score in the second quarter when he ran a punt back to his own 49.

CHARLEY TAKES TO AIR

Charley didn't get anywhere on the ground, the Preflight defending with a decidedly over-shifted line. So he took to the air, hitting Cool for a first down at the Preflight 40. Trippi was thrown for a four-yard loss running, but came right back with a pass to O'Hara for another first down at the enemy 25. Charley cocked that right arm again and hit John Kelleher, former Columbia star, for the score. The Preflight's extra point was wide, and the Navy held a 7-to-6 advantage at half time.

It didn't take long to overcome that lead, however. Trippi came slashing down the sidelines with a punt to the Preflight 38. He took to the air again, tossing to Piro for a first down at the Navy 11. Trippi threw to Kelleher, who fell across the goal line, but the officials ruled the ball dead at the 1.

It took one play for Bob Kennedy to plunge over. Gnu's kick was no good again.

A 79-yard drive brought about the third Army touchdown. Kennedy started it with a five-yard burst through center. Trippi cycled left end for 18 and Kennedy picked up another five. Bonelli, on a reverse, went to the Preflight 36 and then Trippi threw a pass to Scott for a first down at the 23.

THE NAVY PASS FOR SCORE
The Navy stiffened and threw the Army back two yards in the first three plays, but on the fourth down Trippi threw beautifully to Kelleher, who went over for a touchdown. The play was good for 25 yards. This time Seltzer-rich kicked the extra point.

The highlight, defensively, of the ball game, came in the fourth quarter, when the Preflighters drove to the Army 1-yard line and failed to score in four plunges at the line.

A crowd of approximately 13,000 turned out for the game, one of the most thrilling played in the south this season.

Morris Field remains one of the nation's top-ranking undefeated teams.

NAVY BACKFIELD ACE—Hal Hamberg is the spark-plug of the Navy team that plays Georgia Tech at Grant field Saturday afternoon, the first time a squad from the Naval Academy has ever journeyed into the deep south for a game. Hamberg's pass to Charlie Guy provided the touchdown by which Navy beat Duke, 7-0.

Army and Notre Dame Top National Grid List

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(UP)—Army and Notre Dame, acting as if to impress each other by parading their potencies against lesser lights, accomplished top national ranking in the process as the football season reached the half-way mark today.

There were few around to dispute the claim that on the basis of games to date, the Cadets and the Irish should head the list of powerhouse teams. Neither has been extended thus far and no team on either schedule appears capable of giving them a full-blown tussle until their meeting here on Nov. 11. Moreover, their victories over a common opponent, Pittsburgh, indicates that there is little to choose between them, with the Cadets only four points better on the comparative score basis. Army drubbed the Panthers 69 to 7 Saturday, while the Irish defeated them 58 to 0 two weeks ago.

IRISH FACE WISCONSIN
The Irish, who handed Dartmouth its worst beating in 60 years, 64 to 0, will be up against a stronger foe in Wisconsin next Saturday, but the Badgers haven't the manpower to cope with the situation.

Army opposes a good little team, the Coast Guard Academy, but the game should be no more than a warm-up for the West Pointers.

The top drawer collegiate eleven of the south, Georgia Tech's Engineers, will provide the top inter-sectional feature of the day when they entertain the once-beaten Navy Midshipmen. Navy, extended to the limit to beat Duke 7 to 0 Saturday, thus far hasn't made the most of its potentialities and probably will be a slight underdog against the Engineers, who improved their record with a 27 to 0 victory over a good Auburn team. Tennessee and Alabama, also perfect record teams, will meet in another southern showdown.

The Midwest also will provide a meeting between unbeaten teams when Ohio State's titulary ambitious Buckeyes oppose Great Lakes Naval. Ohio State won by a bigger margin than expected, 20 to 7 from Wisconsin, while Great Lakes took it easy in topping Michigan, 38 to 0.

The program of good games is limited in the east, with Holy Cross-Brown, Pittsburgh-Illinois, Villanova-Muhlenberg, Colgate-Penn State and Cornell-Sampson Naval, the only other standouts.

OTHER GOOD DIXIE GAMES
Other southern games Saturday include Tulane-Auburn, Louisiana State-Mississippi State, Kentucky-Virginia Military, Mississippi-Tulane, and unbeaten Wake Forest against North Carolina State.

Conference competition gets underway in full swing in the Big Six and Southwest circuits Saturday. Unbeaten Iowa State puts its record on the line against Missouri, while Nebraska, off-beat, outside the circuit, opposes each other, while Oklahoma plays Kansas State. In the tough Southwestern loop, Texas A. & M. meets Texas Christian, Texas opposes Arkansas, and Rice plays Southern Methodist. The great South Air Force Superbombers play the North Texas Aggies and Southwestern meets Texas Tech in other highlight games in that area.

In a game that might decide the Rose Bowl participants, Southern California's twice-tied but unbeaten Trojans, play the all-victories over unbeaten Washington Huskies on Monday, October 23. Saturday's Pacific coast games feature St. Mary's-Nevada, California-Camp

Sinkwich Star As Lions Lose To Cleveland

Former Georgia Great
Scores 11 of Points,
Passes for 6 More

By FRANK KENESSON

DETROIT, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Cleveland Rams, fighting an uphill battle after falling behind 17 to 0 in the first 18 minutes of play, came back to beat the Detroit Lions, 20 to 17, today for their third straight National Football League triumph.

A shivering crowd of 21,115 watched the Rams roar back to score a touchdown in each of the last three periods to remain undefeated in league play.

End Steve Pritko, who played a great game at end for Cleveland, counted both of the Rams' last-half touchdowns on passes, one from Tom Colella for 10 yards in the third and the other from Albin Reis for 53 yards with seven minutes to play in the final stanza.

Walt West, who missed a second period attempt, converted both the last-half points after touchdown after Reis had skirted the Lion left end and raced 27 yards for the first, Cleveland score.

All the Cleveland point-making came after Detroit had waltzed to two touchdowns and a field goal for a 17-to-0 lead early in the opening period when Frank Sinkwich connected on a 34-yard touchdown pass to Art Van Tone. Sinkwich then booted the extra point.

A Cleveland fumble by Jim Gillette, recovered by Detroit Tackle Luke Lindon on the Rams' 17-yard line, set up the Lions' second score, with Sinkwich hitting the middle for the marker from the five. Frankie again converted to give the Lions a 14-to-0 lead, the end of the first period.

A screen pass, Sinkwich to Bob Westfall, worth 21 yards early in the second quarter put the ball on the Cleveland 10 from where Sinkwich booted a field goal, his second attempt of the period.

Reis broke away for his touchdown gallop midway in the second after setting up the score with a 20-yard pass to Pritko. West's placement attempt was blocked by Elmer Hackney of the Lions and the half ended with Detroit leading, 17 to 6.

Redskins Win
Over Yanks

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—(UP)—"Flinging Frankie" Filchock strengthened his claim to the National Professional Football League's passing title today by hurling the Washington Redskins to their first victory of the season, 21 to 14, over the Boston Yanks before 17,000 fans at Fenway park.

The former Indiana University backfield star, who was just supposed to be a substitute for the absent Sammy Baugh, put on a magnificent one-man show as he completed 10 out of 18 aerials for a total of 145 yards. His fourth period 41-yard toss to Right End Ted Laska provided Washington's margin of victory.

Filchock's work brought his two-game total to 35 completed passes in attempts for 436 yards gained.

The Redskins registered 14 first downs to Boston's eight, and gained 284 yards to the Yanks' 205.

ATTACK, ALWAYS ATTACK

College Machines Geared To Offense

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Attack, attack, attack seems to be the theme for college football teams this third wartime season, judging from the big batch of touchdowns since the first kickoff a month ago.

Typical of the way the offense has dominated the defense this season were Saturday's big scores that saw Notre Dame wallopp Dartmouth, 64 to 0; Army smother Pitt, 69 to 7; Penn overwhelm William and Mary, 46 to 0; Indiana slaughter Nebraska, 54 to 0; the Second Air Force frolic against New Mexico, 89 to 6; Tennessee slap Florida, 40 to 0; Randolph Field trounce Southern Methodist, 41 to 0; Washington sink Whitman, 71 to 0; and Georgia Tech defeat Auburn, 27 to 0. UCLA tripped St. Mary's, 39 to 0, while Minnesota and Missouri traded six-pointers before Minnesota finally won, 39 to 27.

DUKE, VIRGINIA SURPRISE
While the size of these scores was surprising to southern teams, Virginia and Duke, contributed the most unexpected happenings of the afternoon. Virginia held the North Carolina Preflighters, ranked second to Notre Dame in last week's Associated Press poll, to a 13-13 tie while Duke forced Navy to the utmost before losing, 7 to 0.

Colgate and the Iowa Seahawks also surprised. Colgate upset Cornell, 14 to 7, while the Seahawks humbled Purdue of the Western conference, 13 to 6.

The day's results left Penn and Army as standouts in the east followed closely by Navy and Yale; Notre Dame tops in the Midwest with Ohio State leading the Western conference; Georgia Tech, Wake Forest and Tennessee, the giants in the south; Randolph Field in the southwest, and USC and California on the Pacific coast. Two players suffered fractured legs. Capt. Mac Whiting, of Yale, broke the fibula in his left leg during the Columbia fray and is expected to be lost for the season. ob Muentzer, College of the Pacific fullback, received his fracture in a collision with Roger Harding, California center, during their game on the Pacific coast.

NAVY AGAINST TECH
This week's top games pit Navy against Georgia Tech at Atlanta; Great Lakes-Ohio State at Columbus; Wisconsin-Notre Dame at South Bend; Coast Guard Academy-Army at West Point; Rice-Southern Methodist at Houston; and UCLA-St. Mary's Preflight at Los Angeles. Many teams are idle because of Navy examinations for their V-12 students.

Tom Reeves and R. W. Willis, with 79's, and Bill Middleton, A. J. Stine and Dr. A. M. Puckett, who tallied 77's, all tied for second place.

H. B. Sewell Wins

H. B. Sewell was the winner of the blind boy prize in play staged Sunday at the Bobby Jones course.

Tom Reeves and R. W. Willis, with 79's, and Bill Middleton, A. J. Stine and Dr. A. M. Puckett, who tallied 77's, all tied for second place.

Georgia Dress Designer, 16, Is Scholastic Type

By MARY KEY WYNNE.

LYONS, Ga., Oct. 15.—Gwendolyn Jones, Toombs county girl who won the Georgia 4-H dress revue, is the scholastic type. While other 4-H state winners are planning on having one big time at Chicago during the national 4-H Congress, Gwendolyn—as she is known to her friends—plans to spend her off-time visiting the historical institutions.

The attractive brunette is an "A" student at Toombs Central High school, and no doubt will be valedictorian of her class when she graduates next June. Her favorite subjects are English and home economics. Gwendolyn is going to college next year and will major in English, and after that she is going to teach.

With her 4-H activities, school, farm work, and Red Cross home nursing course, Gwendolyn has a full schedule. "I don't have time for men," she declared.

WINNING DRESS
The 16-year-old girl won the state dress contest with a two-piece gold wool dress, which she made. It took her two weeks to make the prize-winning garment—plus a lot of patience. "I sew strictly by a pattern," she said. "I don't think anyone should try sewing without one unless she is experienced and expert."

"I guess the reason I got first place in the state contest was because I finished my seams neatly—I pinked them—and because my dress fit me perfectly."

Gwendolyn, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Jones, lives on a farm several miles from here. Her mother, who looks young enough to be Gwendolyn's sister, teaches the fourth grade at Toombs Central High. So during the week days they catch the school bus together—and mother and daughter go to school.

The 4-H clubber, in addition to sewing, has several other projects which include gardening, orcharding, canning, an' drying fruits and vegetables, home improvement, and raising pigs. During the five years of her 4-H work, Gwendolyn has raised 40 pigs, canned 2,325 quarts, dried 2,000 pounds, and harvested 20,000 pounds of vegetables from her garden.

MAKES ALL HER CLOTHES
Gwendolyn makes all of her clothes, as well as dresses, suits, and coats for other members of her family. She also makes shirts for her brother, Herbert (Dickie) Jr., who has been a 4-H'er for four years.

The girl's hobbies are collecting stamps and reading. For a girl who appreciates the finer things, this is unusual—romances and mysteries are her favorite novels. She thinks "Gone With the Wind" is one of the best books she has ever read, and she reads many of Zane Grey's westerns.

Making her first trip to Atlanta for the state dress contest, Gwendolyn found her visit to the Cyclorama the most interesting part of her stay. "I liked Atlanta," she said, "but everything is in such a whirl."

Gwendolyn is an outstanding 4-H member in Toombs county—to say nothing of Georgia. She is president of the Toombs Central 4-H Club and a member of the state council. The hazel-eyed girl is a past vice president, secretary, and treasurer of the local organization.

Max Rosen Concert
Max Rosen, violinist, will be heard in recital at Spelman College, in Sisters chapel, at 8 p. m. Wednesday, in the first of a series of musical events scheduled at Spelman for the year.

BROTHER GETS FITTED—Gwendolyn Jones, who makes all of her clothes, is fitting a shirt on her brother, Dickie. The 4-H'er makes clothes for her two brothers and her mother. She says she enjoys sewing.

FOOD FOR VICTORY—Miss Marion Price, (left) Toombs county home demonstration agent, inspects a jar of canned vegetables that Gwendolyn is taking from a pressure cooker. Gwendolyn is also an expert cook.

Honduras Foils Rebels' Attack

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 15.—(P)—A group of approximately 400 Honduran revolutionaries exiled in San Salvador was defeated in an attack on the Honduran city of San Marcos yesterday, it was announced officially here today.

The Honduras air force bombed and machinegunned the attackers as they fled into nearby mountains, the announcement said.

A dispatch from San Salvador, however, quoted travelers from the combat zone as reporting that the revolutionaries' attack on San Marcos was successful.

The official account said 11 of the rebels were killed at San Marcos, while 10 were wounded seriously. The Honduran national forces stationed in the city lost eight men and many were wounded in the two-hour battle, it said.

Other task force units also were attacked and many additional planes were known to have been shot down.

Nimitz said further details would be released as they became available.

CHINESE WAR
In the China fighting, Japanese pressing to gain control of south-east China, opened another drive Friday night 25 miles north of Kwailin, capital of Kwangsi province. The Chinese high command said some of the enemy infiltration parties were wiped out and others were being hunted down.

Another Japanese drive headed northward toward Kwailin from Pingnam, 130 miles south, was thrown back Saturday 18 miles from Pingnam, the communique said.

Gen. Stilwell's headquarters at Chungking said that despite poor flying weather and Japanese attack on American bases, the 14th U. S. Army Air Force during the week of October 5-12 sank 3,600 tons of Japanese shipping, probably sank 4,800 tons more, and damaged 9,100 tons. These figures did not include 95 smaller craft sunk or damaged.

In Burma, west African troops on the Arakan front have forced the Japanese from positions in hills between the Sangu and Kaladan valleys.

Delayed reports showed that U. S. Mitchell bombers had knocked out 20 bridges in Burma in the first 13 days of October in blows against enemy communications.

28 PLANES DOWNED
Friday afternoon "numerous" single and twin-engine Japanese planes attacked the task forces. One American combat air patrol shot down 28 planes, and ships' guns destroyed two more.

Other task force units also were attacked and many additional planes were known to have been shot down.

Nimitz said further details would be released as they became available.

planes—doughboys worked ahead slowly digging Nazis from pill-boxes and houses.

A radio correspondent at the front said Americans had won control of about "30 square blocks" in the industrial city.

For days the enemy has been massing reserves east of Aachen, with American artillery and planes taking heavy toll of men and materiel. Yesterday the big blow fell shortly after noon.

The German tanks broke into American defenses but anti-tank guns and a thundering artillery barrage raked the Nazis and forced the armor to pull back.

TO "ROT IN OWN JUICE"
Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' doughboys made slow but steady progress from street to street against the German defenders who received supplies at 3:30 a. m. by parachute from six transports which circled the city.

"We'll close in on them gradually and then let 'em rot in their own juice," one officer told AP. Correspondent Don Whitehead.

"This sector of the front has been extremely sensitive for days," an officer said. "Our men have not been able to move 50 feet during the day without drawing heavy fire and if they moved more than 50 yards at night things began to pop."

The Americans continued to take prisoners from the Aachen garrison which has been ordered to fight to the death to hold the first major city to be attacked by the Allies on German soil.

Two of the prisoners were 14 and 16 years old, respectively, both Hitler Youth members. They said they came to Aachen 10 days ago to collect some of the possessions left in the city by a family which had been evacuated.

When they reached the city, they related, German soldiers took them to the commander who accused them of coming to the town to pillage.

"Since you are not able to leave Aachen all that is left for you to do is to get into a uniform," they quoted the commander as saying. The youths said they agreed and were outfitted with uniforms and given rifles which they learned to use as members of the Hitler Youth movement.

Another prisoner reported all patients had been removed from the city hospital. The prisoner said he had worked for two days and nights carrying small arms ammunition into bunkers inside the city.

Since the attack began 13 days ago in the Aachen area the Army has captured 9,000 prisoners or the equivalent of a full-sized German division. Since D-Day the first army prisoner total now stands at 194,374.

The enemy attack today was made by infantry of battalion to regiment strength with 30 to 40 tanks supporting the drive. For a time it was "touch and go," an officer said, but American artillery and air power smashed the thrust.

3 Die, 5 Injured as Plane Hits Houses
COQUILL, Ore., Oct. 15.—(P)—An airplane, believed to be a Navy plane, plowed through a group of houses here today, killing three naval fliers and injuring five civilians, including a baby. One is expected to die.

Canadians Chop Out Gain Toward Po 7,800 Captives Taken By Fifth Army Since September 13

ROME, Oct. 15.—(P)—Canadian troops of the Eighth Army chopped out additional gains today against strong German resistance in the fighting along the principal highway between Bologna and Rimini fronting Italy's valley of the Po.

Allied headquarters reports placed the Canadians at a point south of the small village of Bulgaria between three and four miles from Cesena, an important town along the ancient highway—the Via Emilia—17 miles northwest of the Adriatic port of Rimini.

British troops south of the highway found rough going in the mountainous area, but reached the road junction of Carpineta on a ridge west of Montiano after an advance of 1,000 yards, then pushed ahead. About 70 prisoners were taken.

On the Fifth Army front American troops advanced across the highway between Castel Del Rio and Castel San Pietro east of Montezemolo, while to the west other American forces moved heavily engaged in the Livernano area on highway 65, about 10 miles south of Bologna. Castel San Pietro is 14 miles from Bologna on the Rimini-Bologna highway.

Farther west Mount Stanco was recaptured by South African troops after several days of fighting, and they pushed on toward Grizzana, a town on a lateral road 21 miles southwest of Bologna.

More Germans were nabbed in this area, hiking the prisoner total for the Fifth Army since September 13 to 7,800.

G. & F. Railway Strike Delayed

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 15.—A proposed strike of telegraphers, maintenance and shop men of the Georgia and Florida railroad, called for 10 a. m. Wednesday morning has been postponed for an indefinite period until the mediation board from Washington goes into the matter. H. W. Purvis, president of the railroad, announced here tonight.

The mediation board will meet in Augusta Tuesday morning to go into all details of the contemplated strike. Over 300 workmen would be involved should the strike take place, it was said.

The men, it was said, had requested an increase in pay and when railroad officials informed them that the earning power of the railroad would not permit the increase, a strike vote was called.

Milton M. Watkins, 71, a man who has worked in the same office for 50 years, was the recipient of a reading lamp, a dozen red roses, and a box of his favorite cigars, tokens of appreciation for his faithfulness and service from 180 fellow employees.

Watkins is chief clerk to the superintendent of car service, Southern Railway Company. A native of Alexandria, Va., he has been with the company since he was 21, transferring to Atlanta when the office was set here in 1928.

Employees of the office have been planning the celebration for Watkins for a month. They arranged for Frank I. Umhau, assistant to the car service superintendent, to take the post out for a while so they could get everything ready for the surprise yesterday at noon.

"He's coming!" And scurrying feet sounded all over the office as they hurried to the desk in the center of the fourth floor at the Spring street building. The 180 gathered around the desk, resplendent with its roses and gayly wrapped cigars and lighted by the shiny floor lamp.

Umhau and Watkins entered. The folks who remembered that the boss could be tough when he wanted to, said he'd probably order, "Get back to your desks!" So they didn't give him a chance.

They clapped and sang "I've Been Working on the Railroad," while he walked slowly toward his familiar desk. Obviously touched by their remembering the day, he looked about him, smiled a little, and murmured something about not knowing what to say.

It was not until he had heard R. B. Pegram, vice president of the company, Umhau, and J. W. Allison, chief clerk of the office, praise him for his 50 years' work that he could muster a few words.

He laughed with the rest of them when Allison read a poem about his younger days when "he used to rip and bang." When the crowd began to disintegrate after the little ceremony, the folks formed a line to shake hands with the boss and congratulate him.

"Imagine coming to the same office for 50 years," said one, adding that Watkins probably had not been out of the office for more than 15 days the entire time.

Watkins and his wife live at 878 Plymouth road, N. E. They have one son and one daughter, both married. Mrs. Elizabeth Clegg, who helped plan the party, telephoned Mrs. Watkins and found that the boss likes to read and that his favorite armchair at home lacked only a good reading lamp for perfect reading comfort. Mrs. Clegg and the other Southern folks got the lamp and the cigars for his comfort, and the roses for their festive air.

One Killed, 2 Hurt At Bell as 20-Ton Platform Falls

MARIETTA, Ga., Oct. 15.—One man was killed and two were injured at the Bell Bomber plant here early today when a 20-ton structural steel platform fell in the B-29 wing line, company officials reported.

The dead man was listed as Mark William Fitts, of Route 1, Marietta, a rigger whose crew was moving the huge structure with three cranes when a cable snapped.

T. W. Strawn, of Canton, Ga., was taken to Crawford Long hospital in Atlanta with face and leg injuries. C. E. Page, of Mooresville, Marietta, is in the Marietta hospital, having sustained a leg fracture.

A coroner's inquest set for today was postponed until 3 p. m. Tuesday when witnesses failed to appear.

Fitts is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Miles W. Fitts, of Marietta; two sisters, Mrs. J. D. Ivey, and Mrs. George W. Dobson, both of Marietta; and six brothers, Charles Fitts, Paul Fitts and Luke Fitts, all of Marietta; Herman Fitts, of Russellville, Ala.; and Sgt. John H. Fitts and Pvt. Quenton Fitts, both in the European war theater.

Born in Pickens county, Fitts came to Cobb county in 1929. He had been an employee of the bomber plant for a year.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the chapel of Mayes Ward & Company, the Rev. G. W. Cox officiating. Burial will be in Mountain View cemetery.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY—R. B. Pegram, (left) vice president of the Southern Railway, and Frank I. Umhau (right) congratulate Chief Clerk Milton M. Watkins on his 50 years' service in the same office of the company. Employees of the office presented Watkins with red roses, a reading lamp and a box of his favorite cigars.

Oil Heiress Screamed, Quiz On Death Finds

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Screams were heard from the apartment house where, a few hours later, the body of 20-year-old Georgette Bauerdorf was found floating in her bathtub last Thursday.

Sheriff's Inspector William Penprase reported tonight. Miss Bauerdorf, daughter of George Bauerdorf, prosperous oil and mining man, was assaulted and strangled some 10 hours before a maid came upon the body, clad only in the top part of her pajamas, said County Autopsy Surgeon Frank R. Webb. A piece of cloth had been jammed into her throat.

Penprase said a neighbor, who declined to authorize publication of his name, told him and police officers that about 2:30 a. m. Thursday "she (Miss Bauerdorf) let out a scream that made me sit right up in bed, and then I heard her yell, 'Stop, Stop! You're killing me!'" The cries were silenced suddenly, he stated.

Penprase added that, while authorities still are seeking for questioning a man in an Army uniform with whom Miss Bauerdorf danced at the Hollywood Canteen Wednesday night, they are inclining toward the theory that she might have been slain by a civilian prowler. A canteen hostess, Miss Bauerdorf had been accustomed to giving rides to soldiers and sailors, and entertaining them at nightclubs, her friends told officers.

U. S. Deserters Hide In Australian Jobs

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Deserters from United States armed forces, some of them absent without leave for as long as two years, are being found in civilian jobs posing as Australians, an American provost marshal said today.

Some of the men rounded up recently were married Australians, said the provost marshal. Two of those just caught actually were trading with their own countrymen without being detected. One was operating a hamburger stand, selling "genuine American hamburgers" and another conducting a house rental business and charging fellow Americans excessive rentals.

Leigh-Mallory Made Air Chief in Asia

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, commander-in-chief of the Allied Expeditionary Air Force under Gen. Eisenhower, has been named Allied air commander-in-chief in southeast Asia, the air ministry and supreme headquarters announced tonight.

The announcement said Marshal Leigh-Mallory had been relieved of his present command effective today and would take his place in the southeast Asia command in the near future.

'Oaks' Results Hailed As 'Realistic, Practical'

KEIGHLEY, Yorkshire, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Most Rev. Cyril Forster Garbett, archbishop of York, said today the Dumbarton Oaks proposals offered a "practical and realistic" approach to the problem of maintaining peace.

Addressing a "Religion and Life" meeting here the archbishop said threats of war could be restrained only by "the rightful use of force."

EMORY MEDICAL UNIT IN AFRICA CITED BY MAJ. GEN. NORMAN KIRK

Praise for the work of the Emory Medical Unit in North Africa is contained in a letter received by Pres. Goodrich C. White of Emory University from Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, who has just returned from an overseas expedition trip for the Office of the Surgeon General.

"The entire country has good reason to be proud of the fine work which our doctors, nurses, and corps men are performing," wrote Kirk.

"Time and again, the wounded called this to my attention, and I had many opportunities to judge of their splendid contributions myself."

"You have particular reason to be proud of this work because your university contributed so much to the high standards of medical care which the Army is now, in this hour of need, able to make available to its fighting men. Time and again, the superior work which the affiliated medical units are performing was there for me to see and what I was unable to observe personally was related to me repeatedly by the surgeons and their consulting staffs."

"I realize what a serious deprivation it has been for your university to meet its manifold responsibilities with so many of its ablest members in the 43d General hospital. I do want you to know, however, that your contribution has been of inestimable value to the Army Medical Service, particularly to our soldier patients."

To give employment and to get employment . . . A Want Ad in The Constitution equally effective in both cases.

"...Wages were sky-high. Most of us were making more money than we'd ever seen in our lives before. And believe me, we were spending it on everything in the world we didn't need—silk shirts, things like that. We were Good Time Charleys and no mistake!"

"He had one all set up and working in his house. It looked good to me. But I didn't have $2,000. I didn't have a dime. He raised the money somewhere, and started a company. They say he's worth pretty near half a million dollars today."

"I had a friend in the Engineering Department named George Miller. He was working nights on a gadget that he had invented to improve home heaters. He seldom went out with the rest of us—just lived quietly and saved his money away."

"That's why I say to you, Son, take a tip from the Government and put your money in War Bonds, life insurance and a savings account."

BOB: "Say no more, Dad! I'm going to have a nest egg when my chance comes."

"When the boom ended, there was a good deal of a let-down. George came to me and offered me a half interest in his invention for $2,000. Said he'd saved $2,000, but he needed another two to get the thing in shape and on the market."

RICH'S

MY DAY . . . By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Friday—Yesterday afternoon, being Columbus Day, the President gave a radio speech which was attended by the ambassadors and representatives of the various Latin-American republics. Then they joined us at tea. It was very pleasant to see familiar faces and to meet the new representatives, and I know that the President enjoyed it as much as I did.

A young woman from India came to see me yesterday, a niece of Tagore, the Indian philosopher and poet. I have always loved his writings and therefore I felt it a privilege to see this young woman, who lived so closely to him in her early youth. She has been 11 years in this country studying, and hopes some day to return to India and help her own people. She has studied largely in the field of the arts, and hopes to preserve the native cultures of her country.

We hurried our dinner a little last night, as the President had to speak again over the air in recognition of an award which was made to him by the Italian-American Labor Council.

Burgess Johnson wrote to me the other day from Schenectady, N. Y., and sent me a pledge which the citizens unity committee of that city circulated. When they found that their two great war industries were bringing them an influx of workers of various races, creeds and color, they feared that unless an attitude of tolerance and common sense was encouraged, some difficulties might arise. They therefore tried to have a clear understanding as to what are the "rights" of citizens as distinct from the "privileges," and to see to it that the "rights" were assured to all. The pledge, which I give you in the hope that you will keep it before you and live up to it daily, is as follows:

"My country is engaged in total war to preserve itself and its ideals. We at home are as deeply involved as the men on the fighting front, and should respond to the best of our ability when asked to give our money, our blood, or our time and strength in public service. As important as any of these is our contribution to the national morale. Therefore:

"I make this pledge to my nation and my community: That I will promote unity instead of discord, true democracy instead of Fascism, by refusing to heed any words written or spoken for the purpose of arousing racial or religious hate. I will discourage by my own words and actions all rumors or reports, however lightly expressed, which reflect upon the character of groups of my fellow Americans who may differ from me in race or creed. I will give no aid or comfort in this or any other way to the enemy."

Glimpses of HOLLYWOOD

By INGA ARVAD

HOLLYWOOD—Just to keep you straight on the two conditions out here: Lana Turner and Turhan Bey have still got their heads in the clouds. . . . Ava Gardner, who used to fine Artie Shaw's company, so fascinating, is now seen in the company of Tony Owen. . . . A surprise couple is Steven Crane and gorgeous Ilona Massey. . . . Marianne O'Brien has got around to Bruce Cabot; the latter, by the way, has just returned to work after 18 months in the Army. He plays a mean gambler in "Salty O'Rourke" and Paramount is starting to give him a big build-up.

Lauren Bacall and Capt. Robert Wilson are a rivet-hot item. Lauren does so well in her first picture that there are many bets she will be a big star within the next six months. Producer Howard Hawks, to whom she is under contract, will probably take her with him to England when he goes there to make pictures of "National Velvet" in which a beautiful picture, and Technicolor has never been used to greater advantage. Elizabeth Taylor, 13-year-old who plays the leading role, is unbelievably good, as is Mickey Rooney acting his cinema father, Donald Crisp. The only thing which jars a bit is if you happen to know Aintree where the actual steeplechase takes place during the month of March. It is usually bleak and rainy, whereas the movie shows it in its Hollywood fashion, sunny, elegant and rich. Because of the stiffness of the course—it has about 30 jumps—the humane Society asked for two of them to be eliminated in the picture.

Jack Benny is back blowing the horn at midnight in the picture of the same title, which was temporarily shelved because of Jack's overseas trip.

Geraldine Fitzgerald was left a mansion in Ireland by an uncle of hers who had seen her for 14 years. Reason: Because she was on the stage. He had sworn never to speak to her after that, so you can imagine Geraldine's surprise.

Col. Robert Scott, author and technical director of Warner Brothers' "God Is My Co-Pilot," and Dennis Morgan, the star, were talking on the set about the trials of young men trying to get through West Point. Morgan asked Scott if he had had much difficulty in making the grade and was somewhat startled by the reply he received. "I found," said Scott, "that by keeping my ears open on the class I could absorb enough for me to pass the exams. In fact, I claimed never to have cracked a textbook during my entire stay at the school. To prove my case I used to seal my books with a band of adhesive tape across which was written, 'This book is turned in at the end of a course.'"

Signe Hasso, Swedish star, just bought a beautiful house off the Sunset Strip with a view overlooking Hollywood. Signe, by the way, turned down not only the play "A Bell for Adano," but one more written by Lawrence Stallings. It is rather amazing that her own studio doesn't make more use of her. She's such an unbelievably good actress and quite a beauty.

Exercises Help Tone Muscles, Improve Posture

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

A good many women are not up to romping lickety-split through a set of strenuous calisthenics. But nobody wants a dumpty figure or a middle-age spread at any age. Besides, most women are better off for taking regular mild exercise. This set of simple conditions will tone the important muscles and spruce up the posture. But best of all, they will bring a sense of wellbeing and increased vigor.

If there is any doubt your taking exercise, please ask your doctor. With an unreliable sacro-iliac or a weak lower back, a spinal curvature, a high shoulder or prominent hip, corrective calisthenics must be supervised. Put yourself in the hands of an orthopedic specialist.

The general exercise rules are: Take it easy, never exercise until unpleasantly fatigued; exercise slowly, breathe normally, relax after each exercise. Do not exercise for an hour after eating a meal, or eat within 20 minutes after exercising. Once you get the habit of taking mild calisthenics, you will look and feel so fit you will not want to skip them.

TO FIRM MUSCULAR GIRDLE

Position: Lying on back on floor, knees flexed, soles of feet on floor, elbows bent, finger tips on shoulders.

Movement: Draw one knee back until the thigh is resting on the abdomen, and at the same time stretch arms up on floor over head. Return to position, flex opposite knee, stretching arms up again. As knee is flexed, pull up and in with lower abdominal muscles, pressing the small of back against the floor. Repeat slowly but forcibly six times. Gradually work up to 12 times, later 25.

Position: Same, with knees flexed, arms at sides.

Movement: Draw knees back toward abdomen, then spread knees as wide apart as comfortable. Bring knees together, separate again and perform exercise very slowly six times, later 12.

TO SLIM THE WAIST

Position: Standing erect, arms outstretched overhead, feet apart, abdominal muscles pulled up. Shoulders relaxed.

Movement: Bend to the right as far as comfortable without taking feet off floor. Back to position, bend to the left. Now bend to the right again, pulling slightly with the right arm as you stretch. Do not let hips jut out behind; or bow at sides as you stretch and bend. Six counts, later 12, later more.

Just these three exercises are enough for a starter. Next week we will have more easy-to-take exercises.

The WORRY CLINIC

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

(Although this is 1944 A. D., many false and unscientific views still persist. The best way to demolish them, is to focus our conscious attention upon them as we are doing today.)

CASE D-279: Henry H., aged probably 50, is an Ohio chiropractor.

In a case record a few months ago I urged you parents to have your children vaccinated against smallpox, diphtheria and whooping cough.

Such vaccination not only protects the children, but also focuses your minds from undue apprehension when you find your youngster has a fever.

At least, you then know the ailment is more likely to be flu, for you have protected him against the most dangerous killers of youth.

A CHIROPRACTOR OBJECTS

"When I read of a physician recommending vaccination for smallpox, I know he is not well informed on the subject," this chiropractor wrote me in this year 1944 A. D.

"Having seen a beautiful, healthy six-year-old girl die of tetanus, admittedly caused by smallpox vaccination, and having witnessed quite a number of horrible effects of vaccine and serum, I cannot conscientiously allow your advice in print to go unchallenged."

"I hope the enclosed circular will be instrumental in causing you to start a thorough investigation of this dangerous superstition."

Don't make a hasty generalization and accuse all chiropractors of holding this quaint view.

But I quote this letter because a group of people in America in all sincerity think they are benefiting mankind by trying to arouse public opposition to vaccination and inoculation.

Their sincerity, however, does not excuse their ignorance. Sincere fellow citizens of Christopher Columbus maligned him, too, but they were wrong in their belief that the world was flat.

And despite the fact they are sincere, the fact they used to be seen as prevalent as measles, and killed hundreds of thousands of children annually.

Most of you readers have never seen a case of either of those diseases. Despite the fact they used to be seen as prevalent as measles, and killed hundreds of thousands of children annually.

FACE THE FACTS

It may be true that in fresh skin lesions, a child has died from vaccination, but that is not to be charged against vaccination.

An elderly physician from New England told me that 50 years ago the physicians there used to carry a little ivory toothpick in their pockets for scratching the skin in vaccinating children.

The doctor would spit on the child's arm and wipe the skin clean with his used handkerchief. He would then scratch the skin until it bled, using the same, unsterilized ivory pick that he had used on other children throughout the village.

Such old-fashioned techniques are not typical of modern medicine today, and should not cause you parents any undue apprehension. True, an unsterile needle might be employed once in a million, but it is a rarity for anybody to suffer serious consequences from vaccination.

Even if one child in this country might act adversely, we medicines have meanwhile saved the lives of at least 100,000 other children from vaccination and inoculation.

Play the batting averages and don't be deluded by old-fashioned fanatics who through the latter be sincere in their false beliefs.

I vaccinate and inoculate all of our five children and expect to do so for our grandchildren.

HOT FLASHES?
If you—like so many women between the ages of 38 and 52—suffer from hot flashes, nervous tension, are weak, tired, cranky, a bit moody at times—all due to the functional middle age period peculiar to women—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms.
For almost a century—thousands upon thousands of women—rich and poor alike—have reported remarkable benefits. In fact many women take Pinkham's Compound regularly during this period to help build up resistance against such symptoms.
Pinkham's Compound helps nature! Also a grand stomachic tonic. Follow label directions.

"A Vital Force For Good"—"My years of experience with people in all walks of life have convinced me of how much folk learn through the true-life experiences of others. When those experiences provide a shining example of the hope and promise in 'right-living' as they do in TRUE STORY MAGAZINE, I consider them not only top-notch reading, entertainment but more importantly—a vital force for public good that is constantly at work."

Dougherty-Little-Redwine Company Will Open Cordele Branch

Little & Company To Serve South Ga. Merchants

Dougherty-Little-Redwine Company, of Atlanta, one of the south's oldest wholesale dry goods firms, has established a branch wholesale house in Cordele, Ga., to be operated as Little & Company.

The Hinton building, formerly occupied by the War Manpower Commission, has been leased for a period of years and has been completely renovated and remodeled to meet the requirements of the firm.

With the idea of giving a rapid, efficient service to its south Georgia customers, a complete stock of staple and novelty merchandise will be maintained as soon as conditions permit, although the scarcity of critical goods will limit the present stocks both in size and variety. A competent staff has already taken possession of the building and is busy making preparations for the opening on October 18. Fixtures and equipment have been installed for some time and a fair stock of merchandise has already been delivered.

The selection of Cordele as a location for Little & Company is the result of a survey made last summer. Transportation facilities combined with a central geographical location were the main requirements, and in selecting Cordele the firm found that a wide fertile territory could be efficiently and economically served from this point and that hundreds of good merchants were located in this natural trade area.

Dealing only with established retail merchants, Little & Company will maintain a sales and service program that will be of great value to that section. Overnight deliveries can be made into any part of that area, and by means of a direct hook-up with the parent firm in Atlanta goods not stocked in Cordele can be shipped by overnight package car service. This will be a great help to merchants in rapid stock turnover, which, according to national business authorities, will be an essential requirement in profitable business operation after the war.

Little & Company is not a separate corporation, but is owned and operated outright by Dougherty-Little-Redwine Company, Inc. The parent firm was organized in 1902 as the Dougherty-Ward-Little Company by D. O. Dougherty, W. A. Ward, L. A. Redwine and the late James R. Little. Mr. Little formed the present Dougherty-Little-Redwine Company in 1909, upon the retirement of the Dougherty and Ward interests and served as the firm's president until his retirement from active business in 1940. Mr. Little, who had just passed his 80th birthday before his recent death, had been in the wholesale business in Atlanta for over 60 years. Mr. George W. Little, brother of J. R. Little, acquired a substantial interest in the firm in 1911, and in 1917 resigned as manager of the Coca-Cola Company of Baltimore and took up executive duties with the firm. He has been executive vice president for a period of years, along with Perryman Little as general manager of the firm. Mell Little, secretary and treasurer, and John M. Taylor, assistant secretary-treasurer and credit manager.

Through the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce of Cordele and the business interests of the city the firm has been able to establish the new branch in record time. Mrs. J. D. Southwell, as assistant manager, will have charge of the branch temporarily. Mr. C. O. Owens, of Cordele, and Mr. Leon Fincher, of Newnan, both south Georgia representatives of the parent firm, will have complete charge of sales in Cordele, and will make their headquarters there for the duration of the war.

Hears Sermon Distinctly With Telex

Mrs. G. L. Wade, Atlanta resident, has this to say about the Telex hearing aid instrument: "I was the happiest person in the world when I attended church Sunday. I was able to hear every word of the sermon distinctly, where before I was tense and nervous at not being able to hear clearly." Mrs. Wade is highly pleased with her new Telex and is sending one of the pictures shown here along with the good news to her son, Ralph B. Wade, who is now serving with the armed forces in France.

Outstanding among the many advancements aimed toward giving the finest in hearing aids is the new Super-Telex, model 1550. Manufactured by the Telex Products Company, of Minneapolis, Minn., this model is the only instrument in the world with four Pentode tubes containing 2 elements in a "push-pull" circuit, and is designed for perfect non-static performance. Operating on a principle of low drain to batteries, it makes for a more economical operation to the user," says Howard Thorn, distributor for Georgia, with offices at 1099 Euclid Ave., in the ground floor of the Euclid Theater Building. The instrument features a tone discriminator with three click-adjustments, which enables the wearer at the flick of a finger to select the exact range which best gives them smooth, audible sound tones, and voices that are life-like in reproduction. Mr. Thorn states that in order to be of service to the many who may now own a hearing aid, but who are seeking better hearing, unusual liberal trade-in values will be the policy of his new Hearing Center.

For the convenience of those who are busy during working hours, appointments can be made between the hours of 7:30 and 9:00 p. m., phone WA. 2576. Or a trained hearing analyst will call at your home for a demonstration and test of your hearing without charge or obligation.

A Telex Hearing Report and Speech Understanding test with a Telexometer, which records results of scientific tests, is made without use of instrument and again after Telex aid is properly fitted and adjusted to accurate hearing.

Latest innovation and development in Telex field of laboratory experiments is the new Telex cord noise suppressor for Telex aids.

MRS. G. L. WADE, Atlanta resident, is shown above in the offices of the Telex Hearing Center, 1099 Euclid avenue, N. E., with Howard Thorn, Telex distributor for Georgia. Mrs. Wade is being tested with a Telexometer for the final fitting of her new Super Telex hearing aid instrument, which she says reproduces sound with a softness and fidelity of tone far beyond anything she believed a hearing aid could be.

and for use on cords of all other vacuum tube hearing aids. It is scientifically proved to suppress aggravating cord vibrations and friction noises. Small, 1"x1 1/4", it fits on cord just below plug connection of cord and instrument. It sells for $1.00 and is attached in one minute without charge. Can be secured only through Telex dealer office.

Dance Skating At RollerDrome Proves Popular

Great interest is being shown this season by skaters at Atlanta's palatial RollerDrome, who wish to advance themselves in dance skating. The dance skating classes, which began last Monday evening, under the direction of Miss Phyllis Sprock, are meeting with great enthusiasm on the part of Atlanta skaters.

The present dance skating classes are for a two-month period, and those wishing to join will have to enroll in the next class beginning December 4. Enrollments for this new series of classes will be accepted during the week of November 27.

Classes are held weekly, Monday from 10 to 11 p. m., fundamental class; Thursday, 10 to 11 p. m., bronze or advanced class; Friday, 6 to 7 p. m., fundamental class.

A 25-cent charge is made for the "hour" instruction. However, it is necessary to skate or purchase a ticket for the regular evening session. Miss Sprock, a "silver medalist," and this marks the first time that a professional has been engaged to advance the popular sport of skating in Georgia, will soon start classes for children from 8 to 14 years of age.

Announcement will be made during a regular Saturday evening session in the near future as to the exact time the new classes for children will be held.

Mr. Kahn, owner and manager, is enthusiastic about the children's class and advocates skating as a healthy, interesting and novel sport being recommended by many doctors for health. All skating in this spacious indoor rink is under the strict supervision of Mr. Kahn.

Private instructions will also be given by Miss Sprock. Call AT 3218 for further information or visit Atlanta's popular RollerDrome at Penn avenue at Ponce de Leon.

FDR, Dewey To Battle On World Issues

By The Associated Press.

International questions will provide a central theme this week in the presidential campaign, as it roars on in full chorus toward its November 7 climax.

Both major party candidates will talk on foreign policy during the week. Gov. Dewey, the Republican nominee, will address the New York Herald Tribune's forum Wednesday.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—(UP)—James P. Clark, chairman of the Philadelphia Democratic committee, today offered to donate $25,000 to any charity Gov. Thomas E. Dewey designates if the Republican nominee "will be honest with the American people."

Clark said his offer was prompted by an announcement by Dewey that his next speech will deal with the urgent need for honesty and competence in our national government.

Wednesday night, President Roosevelt, who declined an invitation to speak on the forum the same night, will address the Foreign Policy Association in New York Saturday night.

Meanwhile, Sen. LaFollette, Wisconsin Progressive, called upon both the Republican and Democratic leaders to break what he called their "conspiracy of silence" on the vital issues of foreign policy.

IMPERIAL DESIGNS

"It is time for America to break away from the imperial designs of Mr. Churchill and the Soviet drive for power of Mr. Stalin," LaFollette said editorially in his weekly newspaper, The Progressive.

"The meetings held in secret at Dumbarton Oaks . . . did not even mention the great problems involved in Europe, Asia or Africa. Their sole purpose was to try to obtain agreement on a plan to maintain peace by force, regardless of what the terms of peace may be."

Both the President and Gov. Dewey continued booking additional speeches in key states as the contest reached high pitch. Mr. Roosevelt's political aides have indicated that he has high on a tentative calendar at such cities as Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago. Dewey, who spoke at St. Louis tonight, has added a speech at Pittsburgh to his list.

RUNNING MATES IN WEST

The rival vice presidential candidates are both on the Pacific coast, contesting for California's 28 electoral votes. Gov. Bricker, Republican, launched a six-day tour of the state Saturday night with a speech at San Francisco's Civic auditorium in which he declared the President "has successfully packed our federal judiciary from top to bottom."

Sen. Truman, President Roosevelt's running mate, traveling toward Los Angeles and a major speech tonight, told a railroad station crowd at Tucson, Ariz., that "no repudiation of the principles of Henry Wallace was made by the Democratic party on my nomination for vice president."

Vice President Wallace himself, defeated by Democratic nomination, told an audience at Muncie, Ind., he has found "a veritable tide of Democratic sentiment rising."

Formation of "the independent artist and writer's group for Dewey" by 10 prominent writers and novelists was announced Sunday night by the Republican National Committee.

Headed by Louis Bromfield, the group includes Booth Tarkington, Kenneth Roberts, Robert A. Rinehart, Margaret Gulkin Banning, Grace Kopp, Rachel Crothers, Sophie Thompson Seton, Inez Haynes Irwin and Faith Baldwin.

Times in New York, Chattanooga for FDR

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(UP)—The New York Times announced tonight its support for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

The Times' chief editor, Harold Ross, in 1940, said in an editorial that the President was "the only man in America who has the courage to stand up to the forces of international reaction."

GI Yule Gifts Flood Mails

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(P)—Christmas gifts for servicemen and women overseas already have passed through post offices in major cities in unprecedented volume as the nation's families rushed to mail packages before the October 16 deadline set by War and Navy departments.

Post office authorities in New York estimated more than 14,000,000 packages had been delivered to Army post offices—an increase of more than 10,000,000 over last year.

The total number of gifts mailed from Chicago was set at 6,000,000 with 40 Army trucks borrowed to handle the mail rush. Officials estimated that 3,500 persons were employed in the work.

Army and Navy postal officers said 17,000,000 overseas packages were being mailed from New York post offices. The Army reported that gifts for Pacific personnel constituted a 100 per cent increase over last year.

More than 315,000 packages had been mailed from Buffalo and 39 carloads of additional gifts were awaiting delivery, officials said.

Fast Gales Rake Caribbean Island

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 15.—(P)—Ninety-four mile winds, gusts of over 100 miles an hour, raked Grand Cayman island today as a tropical hurricane drifted slowly over the Caribbean Sea.

"BABE" OF YUKON Atlantans Travel With Famed Kate

"Kid" Marion, a veteran Yukon river boat captain, paints Klondike Kate as glamor girl he "knew back when . . ." But Kate herself, now past 70, wants to be the "angel and martyr."

Klondike Kate and Capt. Norman Marion are subjects of the choice stories brought home by Mrs. Mary Howland from a two-months' trip through the Upper River country. A correspondent for The Constitution, Mrs. Howland found Kate a blue-eyed, cigarette-rolling "girl" who hasn't forgotten the days when she was a gold rush dance hall "babe."

Kate impressed her most because of her eyes (which Bill, Mrs. Howland's husband, called "very hard") and because of the way she rolled her own cigarettes, then continued her conversation with only a slight pause as she put the tobacco sack string in her mouth and pulled with her teeth.

COLORFUL SKIPPER

"We boarded the Keno, a small river boat at White Horse and were anxious to make the trip on this particular boat because of its captain, 'Kid' Marion," Mrs. Howland said.

"Capt. Marion told us about three days after we left White Horse that Klondike Kate was coming aboard at Coffee Creek. We pulled up alongside the river bank at Coffee Creek—there are no docks in that section—extended a gangplank and Kate and her secretary, who live in Oregon now, walked aboard."

Viscious Mrs. Howland, wife of Atlanta's Time and Life representative admitted that the suggestion of the Alaskan country trek would be distasteful to many of her Atlanta friends. But she liked to sleep in a sleeping bag, wade in mud up to her knees, and shoot grouse.

PROSPECTING HUBBY

Kate is married to an 80-year-old prospector named John Mason, who still prospects for gold, Mrs. Howland said.

"She goes up to Dawson every year to visit Johnny, not for love, but to get his poke of gold. When we reached Dawson, Johnny wasn't there. Kate waited several days and he still did not come. Natives said it was because the water in High river was too high. Later in our trip we met some people who had been on the boat and they told us that Johnny had died of pneumonia, leaving Kate the poke, which was a sizeable one, and Kate and her secretary returned to Oregon."

The dancing girl of Gold Rush days reminisced as she cruised down the Yukon with the Howland family. She said the wooden sidewalks at Dawson seem to echo to her as she walks along them today and she feels that ghosts are treading beside her.

Sergeant Okays Phone Fund

Sgt. Julian M. Asher's contribution to the Heroes Phone Fund came in a trifle late, but it was one of those days behind his control.

The Atlanta sergeant received the July 30 issue of The Constitution asking for contributions to the fund not long ago. Impressed by the appeal for contributions to pay for veterans' telephone calls to their families, he wrote his mother, Mrs. Abe Asher, to increase a year. His parents are for two months and them to The Constitu-

Mrs. Asher was disappointed to learn that her son's donation was too late to be included in the more than $200 collected. But she added her son's praise of the plan to the host of others from whom she have returned from overseas.

Sgt. Asher, a former employee of Rich, Inc., has been increased a year. His parents live at 505 Angler avenue, N. E.

Third Woman Attacked in Parkwood Area

A third case of attack by Negroes upon white women in the Parkwood section was reported last night by a woman who told county police she was attacked just after leaving a trolley car park.

The Negro got off the car at the time Lt. Vernon Hornsby, and walked ahead of the man and her small girl companion.

Walking behind a tree, the Negro tried to drag her into the bushes, but both the woman victim and her screams frightened him away.

The victim described him as about 30 years old, five feet ten inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds.

Columnist Asserts 2 Officers' Remarks 'Unrepeatable'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(UP)—Columnist Drew Pearson said tonight that sworn affidavits of witnesses to the now historic "Battle of the Statler" will show that the two Naval officers involved made "unrepeatable remarks" about President Roosevelt and resisted all polite attempts to get them to leave.

The officers—Lt. Cmdr. James H. Suddeith and Lt. Randolph Dickens Jr.—contend the fracas started shortly after Mr. Roosevelt's first 1944 campaign speech at an AFL teamsters' union dinner when several teamsters accompanied them in a corridor and demanded to know whether they would vote for the commander-in-chief.

Pearson said in his weekly broadcast that affidavits supplied a senate investigating committee show that the officers were "quietly" asked to leave but persisted in staying after making derogatory statements about Mr. Roosevelt.

"When they were reminded that they were talking about their commander-in-chief," Pearson added, "one of them said:

"To hell with the commander-in-chief, we're going to have a new D in January."

He said that when the "trouble" started, one of them—Suddeith—was rushed into a nearby phone booth, kicking and biting, until the shore patrol arrived.

Palestine To Buy U. S. Machinery

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Plans for the purchase of $10,000,000 worth of American agricultural and industrial machinery for postwar use in Palestine were announced today at the conclusion of the metropolitan conference of the Jewish National Workers' Alliance.

Edmund I. Kaufman, of Washington, D. C., president of the Zionist Organization of America, said the purchase would be handled by the American Palestine Trading Corporation, of which he is chairman of the board. The project will be financed, Kaufman said, through a loan to be floated by the corporation.

Bishop Appeals For Aid to China

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Bishop William T. Manning, of New York, appealing for adequate help for China, declared today the country's needs are so great they are "almost beyond the imagination."

"Whatever the reason, it is the bitter truth that only a pitifully small amount of aid has been furnished to China by the United States and the British commonwealth of nations," the bishop said in an address prepared for a service celebrating on the thirty-third anniversary of the founding of the Chinese republic.

Paying tribute to the "heroic, indomitable spirit" of the Chinese people, now in their eighth year of war, Bishop Manning took issue with "those who criticize China on the ground of imperfections in her government administrations and lack of unity in her forces."
